FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT made a good speech at Houston, free from foolish vituperation, full of common sense. This is unusual. The terrific slambang of Mr. Claude Bowers' keynote impressed all. The windup of that speech, "The battle hour has struck. Then to your tents, O Israel," puzzled Will Rogers, who says "the only thing I never saw was one living in a tent."

MR. BOWERS will tell Rogers that Abraham himself lived in a tent, moving it about from place to place, with his flocks and herds. So did many of his relations when Ritz-Carlton Hotels were unknown.

A SURPRISING feature of the Houston convention was the result of Sentor Robinson's appeal for absence of religious prejudice. The appeal started several fist fights, "the police swinging nightsticks and blackjacks." Anybody who expects to get peace and good will out of differences in religious opinion is an optimist.

THE Rev. D. H. McDonald tells the Baptist World Alliance 37,000,000 human beings nominally Protestant are entirely neglected. No church reaches out to get them.

WHY not try to find a dozen Billy Sundays and some more Moody and Sankey teams, to reach those 37,000,000? It should not be hard to interest that crowd in eternal punishment, or eternal happiness, if you can make them BELIEVE.

IN this country we have one automobile for every five people. Everybody could ride at the same time.

Abyssinia, with the fewest automobiles, has one car for every 91,743 people.

The 1,900,000,000 human beings on earth had 29,700,000 automobiles, 24,000,000 of them in the United States. We certainly are prosperous.

JAPAN passes "a peace preservation law," under which anybody attacking the government, in secret associations, will be put to death. Members of associations hostile to the government, seeking to change the fundamental constitution, will go to jail for two years. Those conspiring against private property and the private ownership system will go to jail for 10 years. The Japanese know what they want and how to get it. Our power trust will yearn for that 10-year jail law—and perhaps get it, someday.

REAR ADMIRAL BRADLEY A. FISKE offers a suggestion to discourage criminals.

The automobile is the criminal's "getaway." He drives up, robs a store, shoots down objectors, jumps into his automobile and is gone.

REAR ADMIRAL FISKE suggests that following an automobile holdup all auto traffic be stopped in city streets.

"I suggest that the police sound three or four whistles, all policemen hearing it to pass it along. Traffic would stop, cars would be searched. Any man ignoring the signal would be identified as a criminal."

ON warships, says Admiral Fiske, when men get out of control the bugler sounds "attention!" Every man then stands where he is, or proves himself mutinous.

IN Houston's convention hall, colored people are separated from white by heavy wire screens. Colored men from the North call it "the first Jim Crow convention."

Northern white Democrats protested discreetly against the arrangement, which, as they all know, is the prevailing condition in the South.

In New York there are many colored voters that no longer vote for Abraham Lincoln, even going so far as to vote for a Democrat.

CANADA sent $5,000,000 in gold to bolster the Canadian dollar, a little weak. Our gold seems to have stopped moving to Europe, now that the French franc is stabilized.

Wall Street was cheerful about that and some other things and put up prices in spite of "call money" opening at 7½ per cent.

For one thing, Wall Street is not worrying about the national election. That helps.

IT is possible to be too enthusiastic. Mrs. Cornelius, from New Jersey, joined in the convention enthusiasm, holding a beautiful banner. Senator Robinson announced later, "the lady's hat was knocked off, with $18—one $10 bill, four $5 bills and eight $1 bills—pinned to it." That is not the conventional idea of a lady concealing money.

STOPS PERMITS FOR FIREWORKS

Public Safety Director James M. Clark will issue no more permits for the sale of fireworks. The director made this announcement today.

Last week Council scored Director Clark and the police for their laxity in enforcing the city ordinance governing the sale of pyrotechnics. They charged the police department with "winking" at the law.

The ordinance passed by Council a little over a year ago gives a merchant permission to sell fireworks, but forbids those buying them to explode the crackers within the city limits. To obtain a permit a merchant must pay $50. Director Clark believes the ordinance inconsistent.

"No more permits will be issued by me," the Director said today. "If merchants believe me to be unfair, they can take me into court."

A report that bogus representatives of the city were selling firework permits to merchants in Mount Washington district for $50 was denied by Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh today.

Fourth of July pistols which fire blank cartridges will be confiscated from stores in the Hill district, Inspector John P. Clancey promised in Morals Court today. Already, Clancey said, some 200 such guns have been seized at the J. H. Rosen store, 2131 Center avenue.

Rosen and Sebastian Kaiser, 16, of 638 Herron avenue, were arraigned today because Kaiser fired a blank which burned Samuel DeGallo, 7, of 632 Herron avenue. Kaiser testified he bought the pistol at Rosen's store. They were held over, Magistrate A. D. Brandon announced, until he studied the state law governing the offense.

Mother Spurs Hunt

IN CHICAGO

Mrs. Elizabeth Morman, 3407 Bates street, Oakland, has gone to Chicago to aid police there in the search for her daughter, Norma, 20, who was kidnaped from in front of their home here May 15. Chicago police believe she is held captive in that city.

NIGHT CLUB RAIDERS NET '400' OWLS

NEW YORK, June 29.—Imbued with new enthusiasm within an hour after the Democratic party had adopted a dry plank, which, with the Republican arid platform, makes it unanimous, a horde of dry agents swept into and closed at least 11 of New York's best known night clubs early this morning.

Scores of prohibition agents under Thomas Shannon, lieutenant of Maj. Campbell, started in sections simultaneously for the bigger clubs and the first 11 to be closed fell under the federal hand within 20 minutes.

Bands were silenced in the midst of blaring syncopies. Patrons were ordered out. Agents seized books, bills and documents, as well as what liquor could be found. Doors were closed, lights turned out. Among the clubs raided were:

Tex Guinan's Salone Royale, West Fifty-eighth street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues.

Helen Morgan Club, 134 West Fifty-second street.

The Frivolity Club, 1678 Broadway, at Fifty-second street.

The Furnace, across from Guinan's at 131 West Fifty-second street.

The Silver Slipper, Forty-eighth street, between Broadway and Seventh avenue.

The Beaux Arts, Fortieth street, near Sixth avenue.

Women in evening dress, men in tuxedos prominent socially, were hustled out onto Broadway. The famous White Way in the roarin' Forties looked solemn and almost completely dark for the first time in years.

Raiders said about 50 arrests would be made, all or mostly principals.

Sun-Telegraph Thanked by County Head

To the Publisher,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.
My Dear Sir:

As chairman of the Board of County Commissioners of Allegheny county, I wish to thank you for the fair manner in which your newspaper presented the improvement schedule to the people of our county.

I realize, from a great many years of experience, the influence that the public press has upon the minds of our people; also that your printed matter reaches into every home in our county.

Again thanking you for the fair and unbiased manner in which the various items of this improvement schedule were presented, I beg to remain,

Sincerely yours,

J. G. ARMSTRONG,
Chairman, Board of County Commissioners.

Governor Sends Telegram Favoring Dry Law Change.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 29.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith sent an acceptance telegram to the Democratic National Convention today in which he reiterated his belief that there should be fundamental changes in the present provision for national prohibition.

He said in the telegram, addressed to Senator Robinson, that common honesty compels admission that corruption of law enforcement officials, bootlegging and lawlessness are prevalent throughout the country.

WANTS SANE SOLUTION

"While I fully appreciate," he said, after again stating his stand on prohibition, "that these changes can only be made by the people themselves through their elected legislative representatives, I feel it to be the duty of the chosen leader of the people to point the way, which in

BULLETIN.

HOUSTON, TEX., June 29.—Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, was nominated for Vice President on the first ballot at the Democratic National Convention here today.

The totals: Robinson, 914 1-6; Barkley, 77; Mrs. Ross, 33; Allen, 28; Fletcher, 7; Woollen, 2; Stephenson, 4; Berry, 17½; R. V. Taylor, 6; Moody, 9½; Tumulty, 1.

SAM HOUSTON HALL, HOUSTON, June 29.—It looked like Smith and Robinson as the Democrats returned to Sam Houston's big pine tabernacle today to complete the work of their convention by nominating a running mate for the New York Governor.

Conferences held in the early morning hours, and canvasses of certain powerful key delegations, made it appear certain that the Arkansas Senator who has presided over this convention as permanent chairman would be speedily nominated.

The delegates came wearily and

Doubt King's Here

City and county police officers and heads of the Citizens' League today discounted reports that William L. King, former secretary and vice crusader for the League, is, or recently has been, in Pittsburgh. King is under conspiracy indictment here for faking evidence in the vice probe conducted by the League last year.

"I wish Mr. King were in town," Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh said when informed that the vanishing former crusader was seen in the city. "There are a few questions I would like to ask Mr. King."

The superintendent scouted the report that King was in the city.

"He is too wise to return here," said Walsh.

William Kane, King's successor as director of the Citizens' League activities, said he had neither seen nor heard anything of King.

"I don't particularly want to see

STRAW VOTE BOOMING

Appreciating the secrecy with which they can register their choice as between Herbert C. Hoover and Alfred E. Smith in the presidential straw vote that The Sun-Telegraph is taking with voting machines, hundreds of citizens added their votes yesterday to the thousands that have already been taken in the poll.

The fact that one may vote in full confidence that nobody can possibly know how one voted is making strong appeal. The machines are equipped with curtains behind which the citizens manipulate the levers unseen. This feature of the poll gives it a value as a mirror of public sentiment that is not always to be found in straw votes taken by personal canvass; for when the latter method is followed there is always a possibility, or at least a fear, that the voter's choice will become known, and this sometimes serves to restrain the citizen from voting, or influences him to vote otherwise than he would vote if assured of secrecy.

Throngs visited the six voting machines yesterday. They are stationed in the Sun-Telegraph Want Ad Corner, Jenkins Arcade, East End Savings and Trust Building, Hotel Henry lobby, Bell Telephone Building and Fulton Building.

Results recorded by the machines yesterday follow:

somewhat tardily to the hall, many of them from a night of wild celebration of Smith's selection.

Some of the favorite sons for the Vice Presidency were dropping off the tree this morning after blooming vigorously ehroughout the week.

The apparent disposition was to let the Smith people finish the job of taking over the party assets and future. With Gov. Smith in the saddle now and having been given the kind of a platform his friends said was satisfactory to him, there didn't appear to be any logic in sounding a discordant note at the very end of the song.

The hall was filling rapidly at 10:10. This being the last act of the quadrennial drama, and there being thousands of Texans who have yet been unable to see a session, the police and doorkeepers were being very charitable to the home folks.

"Got a ticket, buddy? No, all right, go ahead."

Thousands poured into the hall in this fashion.

Senator Robinson absented himself from the chairmanship of the convention and it was called to order by Franklin D. Roosevelt, the nominator of Smith and his floor manager, emphasizing that this is a Smith convention.

COOPER ON FLOOR

It was 10:17 when the gavel fell and the sergeants-at-arms began herding the delegates into their seats. Conferences were in progress all over the floor. Latecomers were anxiously inquiring from the leaders "Who is it?" and the answer invariably was "Robinson."

Roosevelt didn't have much luck at getting them into their seats. The bands aided the confusion by playing "The Sidewalks of New York." It was the last day for the bandmasters to do their stuff and they did it.

At 10:30 the "Star-Spangled Banner" brought everybody to attention and order was secured immediately thereafter.

The invocation was pronounced by Rabbi Eli Beckman, of Houston, completing the circle of all faiths and sects that have asked divinity's blessing on Democracy's labors here.

Senator Harrison ordered the roll call for the presentation of names for vice presidency. Alabama, the first state called, sent up Judge Michael Sollie, who proposed the nomination of Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen, who commanded the American forces during the Rhine occupation.

In the midst of the speech, a Mississippi delegate rode down one of the main center aisles astride a burro, followed by a boy on a smaller animal. He gravely dismounted beside his delegation and took his seat, while the boy led the animals out.

ROBINSON PRESENTED

Arizona yielded to New Mexico and Senator Sam G. Bratton, the red-headed junior Senator of the state, took the platform and placed Senator Robinson's name before the convention.

"We are engaged in making history which affects not only the people of the United States but of the whole world," Bratton began. "We have nominated a man who should govern this great commonwealth for at least four years, beginning next March.

"We have performed a great task. Now we must name with him a candidate for Vice President.

"I come to give you a candidate, a native of the state of Arkansas—" There was a "Yip, Yip" at this from the floor.

He sketched Senator Robinson's career—born in rural Arkansas, educated in the rural schools of his neighborhood, and later ambitious enough to study law. The speaker described Robinson's upward climb to political eminence as due to his own unaided efforts. From a small political beginning, he traced "Fighting Joe's" career from minor offices in Arkansas to the governorship of the state, and finally to Washington, where he has now been leader of his party in the Senate for several years.

"We need a man to serve us as one of the standard bearers in this campaign who knows the needs of the American people, and the man whom I present has served in public office for 26 years, and he is only 55 now. He has submitted himself repeatedly to the people of his own state, and never once have they failed to register their approval of him."

MIGHTY CHEER

There was a mighty cheer which apparently came from all sections of the hall.

The Arkansas home folks grabbed up their standard and started through the aisles, and it was but a few minutes until most of the standards in the hall were in the procession.

State banners that would not even bow to each other in the aisles during the Smith nomination now joined together in support of the Arkansan. New York's ensign rubbed along with those of Georgia and Texas. Illinois and South Carolina found something in common, Missouri and Pennsylvania and Ohio marched along together.

When Arkansas was called on the roll she yielded to Massachusetts and Senator David I. Walsh seconded the nomination in the name of his state.

California yielded to Wyoming as the roll call went on. Mrs. T. S. Taeliaferro, of Rock Springs, placed in nomination Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, the ex-governor of Wyoming.

Colorado yielded to Kentucky on the next call and Ex-Senator "Gus" Stanley came forward to offer Senator Albin W. Barkley, Kentucky's favorite son, whose adherents have been for days wearing hatbands proclaiming "Al and Al."

At this point Senator Harris, of Georgia, proposed that nominating speeches be confined to five minutes and seconding speeches to three minutes, and his move to shorten up the proceedings was greeted with a howl of approval.

The new rule went into effect just as ex-Senator J. Ham Lewis, of Illinois, took the platform to second the nomination of Robinson.

When Florida was called on the roll, a youthful delegate, Warren Fuller, took the platform and with arms flying and head shaking he placed the name of Senator Duncan U. Fletcher before the convention. Few heard it, however, for the convention was in an uproar of laughter at the calisthenics which accompanied the 22-year-old legislator's speech.

W. Orr Chapman, of Idaho, followed with a second of Mrs. Ross' nomination.

Got New Coat at Fire, Fireman's Wife Says

Her husband went into a burning building with an old rain coat and came out with a new one, Mrs. Eleanor Evans, 1224 Rush street, testified in contesting the divorce action of Alvin L. Charges which Mrs. Evans had filed with the fire bureau against her husband were dismissed, after investigation, Frank Jones, deputy fire chief, testified. The case is on trial before Judge James H. Gray.

him," he said. "I have nothing to see him about."

The Rev. Dr. C. R. Zahniser, a member of the Citizens' League, also is of the opinion that King is not in the city.

"I know absolutely nothing about King," Dr. Zahniser declared. "I have heard nothing of him since his disappearance."

Mrs. David Cruea, wife of the Rev. Dr. David Cruea, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, does not believe that King is in town. Dr. Crue was out of town today, but his wife said she knew positively that King had not called upon her husband, and she declared that if the former vice crusader had been in town she believed he certainly would have visited Dr. Cruea.

County detectives, who had been notified of King's supposed presence here, at noon today reported they had no trace of him.

ON THE OTHER HAND—

"I would know William L. King a block away. He was positively at my parking station yesterday."

Thus, in no uncertain terms John McInerney, proprietor of a gasoline and parking station at Forbes and Shingiss streets, confirmed his story that the former head of the Citizens' League was in town yesterday. He further stated that King was at his station two days last week. McInerney declared:

"About noon yesterday King drove up hurriedly in a car with two other men. He jammed on his brakes and stopped in front with the wheels of his car on the curb.

"'Here, let me park in front—I'm in a hurry,' he said, and pushed a dollar bill into my hand. 'I'll be back before long.'"

McInerney said King and the men almost ran up the hill in the direction of Bluff street. It was nearly 4 o'clock when he returned and dashed away. McInerney says Patrolman Joseph "Bozo" Lavery, who King had stated was an undercover man for him here, also saw the former vice crusader.

He declares that he thought nothing about it, believing King was back here to post bond. McInerney says King was a frequent caller at his station months ago.

SMITH GAY AS HE AWAITS BALLOT

ALBANY, N. Y., June 29.—(AP.)—Gov. Alfred E. Smith listened on the radio to the entire long convention session which nominated him for the presidency, and he loved every minute of it.

Although he had seemed nervous during the day, a reaction set in after dinner last night. All evening and up until the moment this morning when his nomination was assured, he fairly bubbled over with gaiety. A score of relatives and friends were gathered in the executive mansion as the night session began and just as the meeting was called to order, the governor, who up to that time had been resting upstairs, ran into the room like a wild west movie actor, wearing an enormous sombrero presented to him by some anonymous admirer.

Tossing the hat, which he decided was "too heavy for the climate," onto the piano, he sat close to the radio beside his daughter Emily, who was prevented from going to Houston as a delegate by illness.

As the chairman, having difficulty in getting delegates to leave the aisles and take their seats, called to the master-at-arms to make everyone sit down and if unauthorized persons were in the hall, to "peremptorily expel them," the governor sang "Out the window they must go."

He gave close attention to the reading of the platform, but had several comments to make of a jocular nature.

The reader halted at one place and in an aside was heard to ask for some water. "He can't even wait until the dry plank comes along," grinned the governor.

The plank about bituminous coal brought from him the question "How do you suppose people down in that heat feel when the talk turns to coal?"

When the plank pledging the party's nominee to enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment and laws pertaining to it was read, the Governor made some murmured comment inaudible even to those close to him, and later he would say nothing about it.

He left the room while Gov. Moody and Gov. Ritchie were speaking and returned just in time for the balloting, followed by his great Dane, Thomas Jefferson.

"Come on over and listen to this, Jeff," he said as he sat down before a tally sheet after listening a moment to the strains of "The Sidewalks of New York," his campaign song, being sung on the front lawn by a group of girls from a Catholic School across the street.

As one vote was recorded for him from Alabama he nodded and grinned. "That's one more than I ever got from them before," he said.

In announcement of the Arizona vote six votes were reported for "Albert" E. Smith. "They give me six votes and they don't even know my first name," he laughed.

The governor kept careful count of all the votes. "I get all the big babies any way," he commented after a time. "Everything over 30 I get." But when the name of Missouri was called he said: "There's one 30 I don't get." All 30 went to Senator Reed.

"Here's a hard one," he grinned as New York called. "Great suspense."

Ohio was first reported 48 for Pomerene and then changed to give Smith one. "Find out tomorrow who that feller is," the governor called to his secretary. "We'll send him a telegram." It was Ohio later that gave the governor the nomination on the first ballot by changing its first vote.

PROMOTER PROMISES TO STOP POOL

The Children's Service Bureau scored in its crusade against lotteries today, when one of the six men being prosecuted for selling tickets to school children and others, agreed to discontinue the lottery. Dr. J. A. Cottam, Negro, of 2120 Wylie avenue, promised, before Alderman Patrick Cawley, to forget lotteries, and the information against him was ignored.

Warrants for the five other alleged leaders of clearing house gambles probably will be served today. All are Negroes, and four of them were arraigned before Magistrate John J. Verona last Tuesday. He reserved his decision, and the independent prosecution followed.

SMITH WANTS LAW CHANGE

his opinion leads to a sane, sensible solution of a condition which I am convinced is entirely unsatisfactory to the great mass om our people."

The Democratic platform adopted in the long session of the convention last night may have been a "straddle" on the question of prohibition, but Gov. Smith today stands before the people of the country in an unmistakable light on the wet and dry issues as a result of his telegram accepting the call of his party to lead it in the national campaign.

His stand is directly in line with a suggestion made at the convention last night and brought to the Governor by the radio in the executive mansion. It was Gov. Ritchie, of Maryland, who suggested that, although the prohibition platform of the party might mean little either way, it was a platform which would leave the door wide open for the candidate himself to point the way either way.

At 1:20 this afternoon, exactly 12 hours after the Governor's nomination was assurred, he received the telegram from Chairman Robinson of the convention notifying him of the party action. At 2 o'clock the Governor gave out his telegram of reply which was dispatched at once to the convention, which could at the moment be heard by radio shouting and cheering over the speeches for vice presidential candidates.

2 SENTENCED IN CAR HOLDUP

William Doyle, 25, and Robert McCloy, both of 302 Sandusky street, were sentenced to Western Penitentiary, the former to serve from two to four years and the latter from one to two years, after they had pleaded guilty to highway robbery, in Criminal Court today. They were charged with holding up William Whalen, street car conductor, of 309 Jucunda street, last February 3, and robbing him of $85 cash and car tokens valued at $15.

Marathon Dance Path Leads To Prison

A romance between two dancers in a marathon in Homestead was shattered in Criminal Court today when Jake Stout, 32, of Duquesne, and Lillie Thomas, 28, of Homestead, both Negroes, were sentenced by Judge Joseph M. Swearingen after they had pleaded guilty to larceny.

Lillie testified she had torn her dress at the dance and that she and Stout had stolen two dresses from the J. C. Penny store, Homestead, to enable her to attend a picnic. She was sentenced to serve from one to two years in the workhouse, and Stout one and a half to three years in Western Penitentiary in addition to an unfinished parole term of three years.

FRIDAY. JUNE 29. 1928

KINGS BAY, SPITZBERGEN, June 29.—(AP.)—A strong north wind and a blanket of fog combined today to block efforts to rescue five survivors of the crew of the Italia and a Swedish airman drifting on an ice floe. The strong wind has brought the floe nearer land and today the castaways were about 10 miles north of Cape Leigh Smith.

Searching expeditions for nine missing members of the Italia's crew were also held up. There was fear that these men would never be found alive and there was considerable speculation as to events which preceded and followed the disaster.

Withholding of the news of the death of Vincenzo Pomella for a month by Gen. Nobile and refusal of those in command of the base ship Citta Di Milano to allow newspapermen to question the dirigible's commander have given rise to many rumors. Nobile also was being criticized for coming to safety first, leaving his five companions to endure the rigors of life on an ice floe.

MAY HAVE BEEN TOO LOW

Experts said that if Nobile had been following his usual practice of flying low on the fatal Polar voyage he must have added greatly to the peril of such a journey.

It was stated that on May 16, when the airship was on its trip to Lenin Land, Nobile nearly crashed into a mountain in Novaya Zemlya.

Capt. Alberto Mariano, the pilot, was taking a nap at the time, but was sleeping so lightly that he heard the antenna touch the ground. He immediately took the rudder and saved the airship from disaster. Nobile's only explanation of the disaster on May 25 has been that the airship was suddenly weighted down and it was impossible to avert the crash on the polar ice cap.

In the controversy between Roald Amundsen and Nobile after the flight across the pole of the dirigible Norge two years ago it was stated that the expedition was twice close to disaster because of being too near the ice. Capt. Hjamar Riiser-Larsen was credited with having averted a catastrophe by taking the rudder into his hands.

Globe Girdlers Fly to Ship

ON WAY HOME

Amelia Earhart, first woman to fly the Atlantic Ocean is steaming homeward over the seas to America, after two weeks as the idol of England. Here are some of the scenes attendant to her arrival and Honization. The photos show the Friendship as it arrived at Burry Inlet, Wales, where it was forced down; Amelia, as she ferried from the plane, "pestered" for autographs; the crew of the ship in Southampton; and Amelia after she secured woman's clothing in London.

COMPLETE FIRST HOP OF RACE

International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 29.—Capt. C. B. Collyer, well-known pilot, and John Henry Mears, former holder of the record for the fastest trip around the world, hopped off from the Battery at 5 o'clock this morning in a seaplane on the start of an attempt to girdle the globe by boat and plane in 18 days.

REACH SHIP

The two speeders safely boarded the vessel from the pilot boat 45 minutes later. A wireless message with this news was received here by the White Star Line.

The fliers landed the seaplane beside the small pilot boat, which transferred the men from the plane to the side of the Olympic, which they boarded by scaling a rope ladder.

They planned to overtake the liner Olympic, which sailed at midnight, and board the steamship at sea. When the Olympic reaches England the aviators will fly across Europe, Siberia, China and to Yokohoma. They will then journey to San Francisco by boat and fly from California to New York.

THREW FIRECRACKERS AT WINDOW; FINED $50

Tossing lighted firecrackers against windows of the paint shop of the Pittsburgh Transformer Company, Preble avenue, cost George Butler, 28, of 1711 Columbus avenue, $50, with the option of spending 60 days in the workhouse. He was arrested last night on complaint of the manager of the plant. Magistrate E. M. Hough in North Side Police Station today imposed the fine.

'Nough Sec'nders To Elect Al, Says Will

HOUSTON, Tex., June 29.—The only thing I got against Al was his seconders. If so many hadn't seconded him we would have been home a week ago. If his seconders all vote for him he will walk in.

WILL ROGERS

And don't let anybody kid about the heat here, especially from eastern cities. There is always a dandy breeze and it's cool at nights. It's the hotel lobbies that are the black holes of Calcutta. Let's see, this is Friday. The elevators in the hotels are going up today. Democracy has found a candidate. Now they are looking for a drink.

Yours,

WILL.

June Rains Smash Record

The June deluge reached 7.38 inches today, breaking all records for the month of brides, the weather bureau announced.

Up to yesterday 6.64 inches of rain had fallen on 20 days. Last night's downpour added .74 inch, thereby passing the highest previous mark of 6.95 in June, 1881.

"Showers this afternoon and tonight," was the prediction of Forecaster W. S. Brotzman, who said exceptionally heavy rains had been reported down the Ohio Valley.

"Reports from country districts," said Brotzman, "are that some corn fields have become so grassy farmers have had to plow the crop and sow buckwheat."

Pittsburgh AS OTHERS SEE US

"Pittsburgh's cultural achievements are great."
—CHANNING POLLOCK.

CHANNING POLLOCK

CHANNING POLLOCK, author and dramatist, born in Washington, D. C., March 4, 1880; educated at Bethel Military Academy and abroad. Dramatic critic of the Washington Post, 1898, and general press representative of William A. Brady. Since has contributed to current periodicals and is author of several successful plays. Lives in Shoreham, L. I.

After people have enough food and clothing literature and the arts become an all important thing in life. They are most important in industrial communities, as water is most important in a desert. One of the great mistakes of "high-browism" is that it purveys to "high brows," instead of to the men and women who need instruction.

As a city that has material plenty, Pittsburgh's chief requirement is cultural plenty, and her chief glory lies in the fact that apparently she demands it, obtains it, appreciates it, and even supports it. There is no need of specifying facts in proof; they are too generally known. Pittsburgh's cultural achievements are great. Her possibilities and responsibilities are even greater.

DRY LAW ENFORCEMENT, FARMERS AID PROMISED

DEMOCRATS HIT G.O.P. HARD IN PLATFORM

HOUSTON, June 29.—(AP.)—A pledge for an honest enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment, a wide-open door for enactment of legislation to aid agriculture, and a scathing attack upon "Republican corruption," constitute the major points in Democracy's 1928 platform declaration on dominant national issues approved last night by the convention.

Throughout the 4,000-word pronouncement—the shortest national political platform of recent years—the Republican party is assailed, with especial attention given to its treatment of agriculture, its foreign policy with especial reference to dealings with Latin America, its taxation and tariff systems and its failure to enforce prohibition.

No mention is made in the platform of either the League of Nations of the World Court, but there is a strong declaration against entangling political alliances with foreign nations. Indorsement of the League led to a bitter fight four years ago in Madison Square Garden.

The tariff pronouncement also came in for especial attention by the party leaders, since it asserted that the "actual difference between the cost of production at home and abroad, with adequate safeguard for the wage of the American laborer, must be the extreme measure of every tariff rate."

Prohibition Plank

The law enforcement plank of the Democrats consists of only 10 lines, saying at the outset that the Republican party, after eight years of control of the government, presented "the remarkable spectacle" of feeling compelled to apologize to the country for its failure to enforce the dry laws. Then it adds:

"Speaking for the national Democracy, this convention pledges the party and its nominee to an honest effort to enforce the Eighteenth amendment and all other provisions of the Federal Constitution and all laws enacted pursuant thereto."

The highlights of the Democratic declaration aside from prohibition are:

AGRICULTURE—Credit aid to co-operative marketing organizations; creation of a Federal farm board to assist the farmer in the marketing of products as the Federal Reserve Board has done for the banker and business man; reduction of the spread between what the farmer receives and what the consumer pays, and the distribution of the cost of dealing with crop surpluses over the marketed units of the crop whose producers are benefited by such assistance.

FINANCE TAXATION—A further reduction of the internal taxes of the people; administration of the Federal Reserve system for the benefit of the farmers, wage earners, merchants and manufacturers and not to the advantage of "stock market speculators."

Tariff Revision

TARIFF—Enactment of a measure to maintain legitimate business and a high standard for American labor with duties that will permit effective competition, insure against monopoly and free the tariff commission from "the executive domination—which has destroyed the usefulness of the present commission."

FOREIGN POLICY—Outlawry of war; freedom from entangling political alliances with other nations;; protection of American lives and rights; reductions of armament and non-interference with other nations; protection of American lives and rights; reduction of armament and non-interference with the elections or other internal political affairs of any foreign nation, including "Mexican, Nicaragua and all other Latin-American nations."

WATER POWER, WATER WAYS—Deep waterways from the great lakes to the gulf and to the Atlantic ocean and the expeditious construction of flood relief works on the Mississippi and Colorado Rivers.

LABOR—Collective bargaining, exemption of labor from operation of the anti-trust laws and correction of the abuses in the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes.

VETERANS—Generous appropriations, honest management, removal of vexatious and administration delays, and sympathetic assistance for the veterans of all wars.

To Employ Idle

UNEMPLOYMENT—Correction of this misfortune by adoption of a scientific plan for construction of necessary public works during periods of labor depression.

WOMEN AND CHIDREN—Equality of women with men in all political and governmental affairs and protection of children through their infancy and child hood.

IMMIGRATION—Preservation of the quota law, but with elimination of provisions that separate husbands from wives and parents from infant children.

RADIO—Government control must prevent monopolistic use of radio communication and guarantee equitable distribution and enjoyment thereof.

Mining Legislation

COAL—Constructive legislation that will allow capital and labor a fair share of prosperity with adequate protection to the consuming public.

CONGRESSIONAL ELECTIONS REFORM—Abolishing "lame duck" sessions of Congress by advancing the date for the new Congresses to meet to two months after the general election.

CAMPAIGN EXPENDITURES—Improper and excessive use of money in elections is condemned and a pledge made for publicity of Democratic campaign receipts and expenditures in the coming election every 30 days beginning with August 1.

MERCHANT MARINE—Continued government operation, but with the gradual sale of ships and lines to private owners.

EDUCATION—Federal offer to the states of such counsel, advice, result of research and aid as may be made available through the Federal agencies for the general improvement of schools.

MONOPOLIES AND ANTI-TRUST LAWS—Strict enforcement of the anti-trust laws and the enactment of others to control monopolies and protect the small merchant and manufacturer.

FLOOD CONTROL—Indorsement of the Jones-White bill for Mississippi River and Sacramento River flood control.

States' Rights

RIGHTS OF STATES—Constitutional rights and powers of the states shall be preserved and bureaucracy and the multiplication of offices and office holders sharply checked.

ECONOMY AND REORGANIZATION—Business-like reorganization of all government departments, elimination of all duplication, waste and overlopping and substitution of modern business methods.

TRANSPORTATION—Encouragement of the development of air transportation; continued Federal aid for good roads and the protection of common carriers, whether by land, water or rail, in an equal opportunity to compete.

INSULAR POSSESSIONS—Development of self-government for Alaska and Hawaii with appointment of only bona fide residents to office in the territories.

PHILIPPINES—Immediate independence.

PORTO RICO—Territorial government or government as would best meet the island's need with a view to ultimate statehood.

Other planks declare for fostering the mining industry; a living wage for Federal employes; more liberal compensation to Federal employes who are injured or killed; employment of American citizens in co-operation and maintenance of the Panama Canal in all positions above messenger with liberal compensation; fulfillment of the promises made to Armenia for local self-government by the Allies and America after the World War and preservation of the civil service.

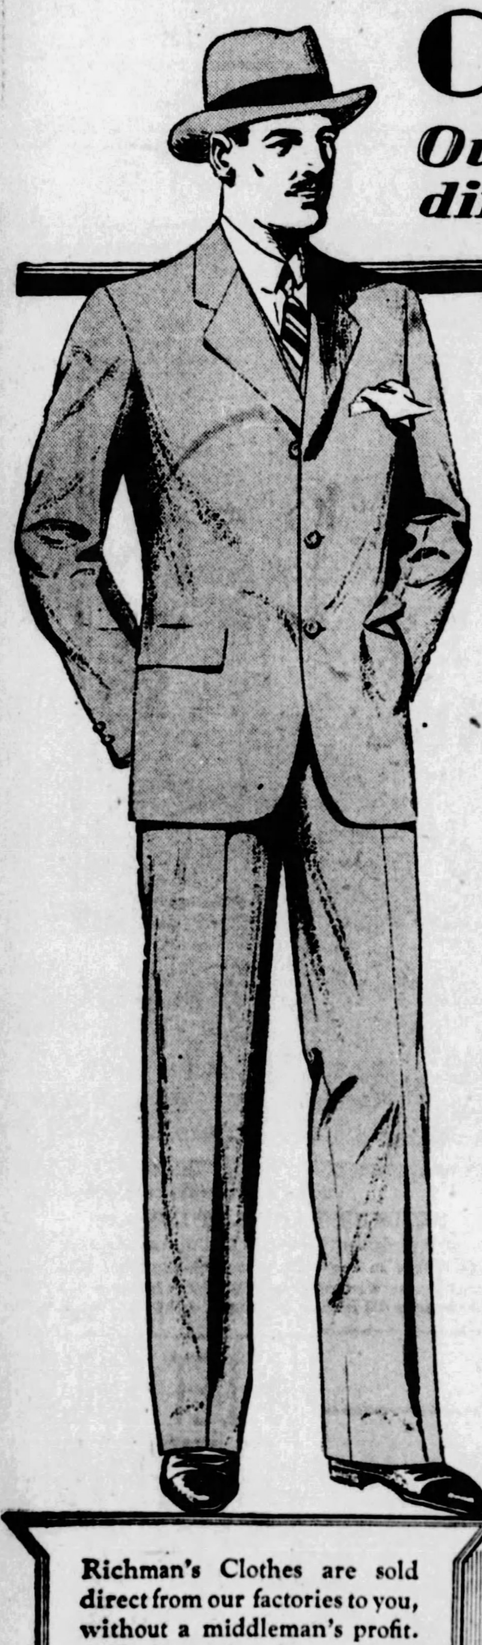
RICHMAN'S CLOTHES



Our factory direct to you—all $22.50

Established 1879

They are Made to Give Long Wear

From the selection of the woolens to the sewing of the last button, Richman's Clothes are made with the thought that they must give you longer wear than you really expect.

Our woolen experts and lining buyers purchase only from dependable markets materials that will pass our rigid quality tests—our factory managers are constantly on the alert for new devices and methods for improving the tailoring in each of the 232 operations we employ in making a suit—and finally, our examiners reject any garment that shows a single fault in materials or construction.

And the highly trained men and women who make Richman's Clothes gladly share with us responsibility for your satisfaction, because they own a substantial interest in this business.

Fine Gray Flannel Suits for Hot Weather Comfort

$22.50

$22.50 is not the price of a limited number of suits advertised to bring you into our store with the thought of selling you something at a higher price—it is the only price you can pay for any suit, topcoat, sport suit, or tuxedo suit with silk vest you may select from the thousands we show.

Richman's Clothes are sold direct from our factories to you, without a middleman's profit. Added to this big saving, the buying and manufacturing economies commanded by Richman resources give you the greatest money's worth you ever found in a suit of clothes.

COSTS WOMAN $500 TO HEAR FORTUNE

It cost Mrs. T. E. Regelman, of 539 Brushton avenue, $500 to hear what the fates had in store for her, according to the Frankstown avenue police.

The fortune-teller who got his sum from Mrs. Regelman is described as wearing loose-fitting clothes and having all the outward appearances of a mystic. When the stranger entered Mrs. Regelman's delicatessen store last Monday and offered to let the latter peer into the future for a nominal sum Mrs. Regelman quickly consented. In addition to making clear the future the fortune-teller also promised to double Mrs. Regelman's money.

"How much money can you get to put under your pillow?" the stranger asked Mrs. Regelman.

"Five hundred dollars," Mrs. Regelman responded, adding that she would have to draw the money from a bank.

The strange woman said that the fact that the money was being taken from a bank would make no difference. Mrs. Regelman got the money and placed it under her pillow, promising not to look for it until Thursday, at which time it was to have doubled.

Confident that the money had doubled, Mrs. Regelman eagerly lifted her pillow yesterday and found only bits of paper where she had placed the money. She told the police this story, the latter say.

Mrs. Regelman today denied the fortune-teller angle of the story. She said a foreign woman had come to her store to make purchases and had asked permission to enter the living rooms. After the woman's departure Mrs. Regelman missed the money, she said.

EVERYTHING SET FOR JUBILEE

All set for The Sun-Telegraph Jubilee? Have you thought of the fun you boys and girls are going to have at National Amusement Park as the guests of The Sun-Telegraph next Tuesday, July 3?

The last of the tickets were mailed today and the little folks who sent in their coupons are now planning for the big time they are going to have where everything is free.

The park gates will open at 9 a. m., daylight saving time, and at this hour the Sun-Telegraph ticket holders will be admitted to all the amusement attractions listed on the coupons and will have the free run of the grounds until 6 p. m. At that hour the boys and girls, after a full day's play, will be tired and happy, and ready to turn their steps homeward.

The French vanilla bar, Reinhold's "Cream of the Valley," will be served between 12 o'clock noon and 1 p. m. only. A large force of attendants will be on hand and the delicious ice cream will be served quickly and without delay. All the Sun-Telegraph's little friends are urged to have their coupons ready and to get in line early for the ice cream treat.

And remember, the whole day is yours. Disregard the schedule printed on the coupons and visit the amusements any time between 9 a. m. and 6 p. m., but the earlier the better.

Appointed

T. A. JOYCE

Thomas A. Joyce, Reedsdale street, has been appointed a member of the Pittsburgh Registration Commission to succeed the late John F. McKelvey, Gov. John S. Fisher has announced. Mr. Joyce was Democratic candidate for register of deeds of Allegheny county at the last general election.

MOTHER JAILED ON PLEA OF NEGLECT OF CHILD

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 29.—In default of payment of a fine of $25 upon her plea of neglect of her 16-months-old baby, before Alderman A. A. Cummins, here yesterday, Pearl Engle, 18, was sentenced to a term of 30 days in the Washington County jail. Alderman Cummins has not announced the sentence of Mrs. Nancy Neighbors, 20, who lived with Mrs. Engle and was arrested in a neglect charge when her 10-months-old son, William, was found with a broken thigh which had been suffered several days previously. The child is in the hospital.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A WIDOW'S WILES

By BERTHA R. M'DONALD

THE sheriff's office of Boone county boasted two auxiliaries, deputy and special deputy. Both of the incumbants were clean cut, moral, good looking young stalwarts who had not yet been persuaded to shuffle off the coil of single blessedness for the holy bonds of matrimony.

"Know women too darn well," Bert Pershing, the deputy insisted. "Most of 'em rope men in for a reason—a home, money or just because they don't crave to be branded old maids. Not for love, that's sure."

To all of which sage reasoning, Rod Whitman, special deputy, gave his unconditional second.

Hard on the heels of this very one sided argument, the sheriff came into the office one day with the announcement that Pershing would have to call on the Widow Parsons immediately to serve a writ of attachment he had just issued against her.

"Sure," agreed Pershing readily, glad to have the opportunity to belittle a wily widow. "What's the thing for anyway?"

"Her Lizzie—auto," the sheriff answered. "Jeff Druggin's taking it for a milk bill him and the widow disagreed about. She won't pay so he takes the machine—savvy? Maybe you can surprise Jeff by coaxing the money out of the old girl instead."

When Pershing strode confidently up to the side door of the Parsons cottage, the pleasant odor of freshly baked pastry was wafted to him from the direction of the kitchen. He decided he would speak about it—take the widow off her guard by being nice.

"Smell good, don't they?" Mrs. Parsons said, when Pershing sniffed knowingly and smiled. "Fresh custard pies and I'd like nothing better than to treat a caller to a chunk of one."

It was Pershing who was taken off his guard. The widow ushered him to the cool screen porch, still chattering so that he found it impossible to utter a word himself and left for a moment, only to return with a quarter of a pie and a huge glass of creamy milk. Bert began to wonder right then how he was going to do anything so unpleasant as the errand which had brought him, when he was being treated so like a king.

"That's wonderful pie, Mrs. Parsons," he said, finishing the last delicious bite, "and the milk is exceptional. I—I hope you won't lay it up against me—"

"Lands sake, Mr. Pershing! Don't you go to apologizing for eating a quarter of a pie. That's nothing for a sizy man like you. The milk is good, isn't it? I take from the Druggin dairy. If you want good custard pie you've got to have the very best grade of milk and that's what Druggin sells."

"Mrs. Parsons," Pershing began, blushing like a girl as he arose, with his hand fumbling that hated writ in his right coat pocket, "as I said before, the pie and your hospitality are wonderful. Now I—I—perhaps you've guessed about the attachment I have for you and—"

"My! Oh, my! This is pretty sudden, young man, seein's as I haven't seen overly much of you," the widow answered with perturbation. "You just run along and let me think this over while I get my breath."

Pershing was so flabbergasted that he couldn't do anything but run along as she asked him to. He didn't stop until he had reached the sheriff's office, where he found Rod Whitman sitting at a desk, whittling a stock. He thrust the writ under Whitman's nose with a contemptuous snuff.

"Go try your luck, Rod," he said without a word of explanation. "Guess I'm just plain no good when it comes to collecting."

"I know you, Persh," Whitman laughed, reaching for the writ. "I bet a plugged quarter you got soft. Well let your Uncle Dudley try his hand. No widow's going to soft soap me, I'll tell the world!"

Whitman took the paper and left Pershing who sat down to reminisce delightfully about that custard pie. The widow Parsons was comely and she was affable. Pershing soon found that he was thinking quite as much about the lady as he was about her pie.

"Why you spineless old jellyfish!" he thought to himself, "After all you've said about women, too!"

Whitman did not return to the office that afternoon. When Pershing went to his cheerless boarding house and sat down to the evening meal he could not, to save his life, keep away thoughts of Mrs. Parsons, her neat little home and her delicious pastry. He began to dislike thoroughly the idea of having the widow know just what the errand was which had taken him to her house in the afternoon. He decided to make a second call after supper—just a pleasant social visit. Perhaps he'd fuss around and hint and find out what Whitman said or accomplished during his visit. Perhaps he'd ask the widow something else before he got through with it. Perhaps she'd answer affirmatively. Perhaps—oh, perhaps. Again Pershing felt himself blushing like a girl.

All the way out to the Parsons cottage Pershing thought how nice it would be to sit on that screened porch of an evening; how pleasant it would be for a fellow to have a nice woman like the widow fussing over him, making him comfortable, cooking the things he liked. He was so lost in thought that he did not note a man hurrying along ahead of him until they met in front of the Parsons home.

"Why, hello, Rod" Pershing said in surprise. "What you doing here? Didn't you serve that writ this afternoon?"

"No, darn it all, I didn't. How could I when she was giving me custard pie and milk and acting like I was a regular guest? When I did manage to mention the attachment I had for her, the poor girl thought I was popping the question; said she always knew the way to a man's heart was through his stomach; asked me to wait for my answer and all that program. I just thought I had to come back tonight and make good what she thought I was doing this afternoon. That writ can go hang for all of me. Don't need any help-toddle back, will you, Persh?"

They were on the steps and Pershing reached out boldly to knock on the door, in spite of his colleague's gentle hint. When it was opened by the widow herself, the deputy and the special deputy looked past her into the brightly lighted dining room. There they saw Jeff Druggins, the cause of their present dilemma, sitting at the table, eating custard pie and drinking a mug of his own perfect milk.

"Land sakes!" the widow laughed, when she saw who her callers were. "Have you fellows come back for more pie? Well, come on in and have some with Jeff. Jeff's going to be boss around here in about a week. I'd a been Mrs. Jeff Druggin long ago if we hadn't had a silly quarrel over——well—over nothing."

"I always said women rope men in for something besides love," Pershing said with a tinge of bitterness, as he and Whitman were walking home. "Here's this wily dame marrying a fellow to keep from paying a bill. Can you beat that?"

Three hundred art students invaded the new library works at Louvain, Belgium, and shattered the pillars of a balustrade which Rector Ladeuze desired to have erected instead of one by Whitney Warren, millionaire American architect. The students, you see, preferred Warren's.

GLASS IN PIE, WOMAN SUES

Broken glass, eaten in a lemon pie, which cut her stomach and caused serious illness, was made the basis for a $30,000 damage suit in Common Pleas Court yesterday by Mrs. Josephine Walko and her husband, Stephen J. Walko, against Fred Rhoden, former operator of the Rhoden Home Bakery, 1500 Monterey street.

Mrs. Walko filed a claim setting forth that she brought a pie at the bakery January 31, 1926, took it home, ate some, and immediately became ill. She says that she was hurried to Passavant Hospital where it was determined that broken glass had cut her throat and stomach. She says the show case from which the pie was sold to her, was broken and pieces of shattered glass had fallen into the custard. She claims the baker should have known this.

She stated that Rhoden had recently sold his bakery and plans to move out of the state. Judge A. B. Reid granted $750 capias bail in the case.

HATBOX YIELDS LIQUOR WOMAN OWNER JAILED

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 29.—An ordinary looking hatbox, carried by Mrs. Cassie Kirk, 25, of Burgettstown, aroused the suspicion of Constable W. F. Core, of that place. He had seen Mrs. Kirk get off a Pittsburgh train repeatedly carrying the hatbox. He decfded to investigate and says he discovered a gallon jug of moonshine in it. In default of $1,000 bail, Mrs. Kirk is now an inmate of the Washington County jail.

SERVICE
While Travelling

Is not a luxury but a necessity. It smooths the way. When Service is perfect-travelling becomes a continuous pleasure. Even though our ships are modern in every way, our route one of primitive charm, our cuisine unsurpassed, although there is dancing, deck games, a library and innumerable other advantages—without proper Service the exhilarating joy of a Great Lakes Cruise would be lost. That is why we have set the highest possible standard of Service and insist on it.

To say this is a wonderful opportunity is to put it mildly! For, conservatively speaking, there isn't a suit in this sale that isn't worth $35.00, and most of them are worth more (yes, even $45.00). All those new Tans, Grays, Browns and Mixtures. All sizes, for men of all builds.

SCHOOLGIRLS' CLUB BOOSTS ICE FUND

The Handy Club, a small organization composed of a dozen Sterrett School girls, has boosted The Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund to the extent of $21. The money was raised by means of a lawn fete which the young philanthropists held on the lawn of the Point Breeze Presbyterian Church. The members of the club are Mary Dalb, the president; Constance Atkinson, vice president; Sarah Von Senen, who was general chairman of the lawn fete; Clara Mottlan, Frances Fiske, Margery Anderson, who is secretary-treasurer; Virginia Norton, Virginia Kreiling, Thelma Kitzemeyer, Jane Unger, Jessi Gass and Ann Miller.

"Te Christmas Candlestick," desdbed by one of the participants as " madeup play," was one featureof a benefit which a group of Hutchinson avenue children gave for he fund and at which they raise $12.25. One of the neighbors kindly exhibited a motion pictun, the boys and girls sold tickets and candy and "passed the cap" and all in all created quite considerale excitement and enthusiasm in he neighborhood, incidentally prdding a sufficient sum to feed sig babies for a week. The workersncluded Richard Rhodes, Ned Stel, Blanche Peters, Nevin Rhes, Sarah Moyer, Anna May Peto and Virginia Stehl.

Business Girls!

It's Good Business to Keep Skin Fresh, Clear and Youthful.

Here's Easy Way to Do It Without Hours of Fussing

You can give yourself a simple massage in the morning with Howard's Buttermilk Cream and in a few minutes' time your skin will look as smooth, fresh and lovely as if you had been spending hours of care on it—and it's ready for powder, too.

Any skin specialist will tell you that there's nothing in the world so good as old-fashioned buttermilk to reduce enlarged pores, tone up sagging muscles and clear and whiten the skin—you get the genuine buttermilk in Howard's Buttermilk Cream. Don't overlook this truly remarkable beauty aid—give it a trial. May's Drug Stores and druggists everywhere guarantee every jar or tube.

Fay King Gives Code for Wearing Diamonds

By FAY KING

IT was once considered bad taste to wear diamonds in the morning.

Now we see dinner rings worn for breakfast trays. One thinks nothing of seeing diamond bar pins on sweaters.

But it is not a matter of taste so much as a matter of tact, when and where to wear diamonds.

Diamonds worn on swimming suits, among women all of whom have a collection of fine jewelry, is in better taste than to display diamonds at work where others have none.

It is thoughtless to display diamonds in public places. Those across from you may lack funds to care for dear ones who are sick and in need of so much!

The best taste in diamonds that I know of had to do with a girl who worked in an office. She was engaged to be married. Girls chided her because she had received no engagement ring.

But the truth was she had received a very handsome one. She did not wear it to work because it outshone some of the simpler engagement rings the other girls had. She did not wish theirs to seem less by comparison.

FETE BRINGS $21

Constance Atkinson, Mary Daub, Clara Mottlan and Sarah Von Senden are members of the Handy Club, Sterrett school, which held a fete on the lawn at Point Breeze Presbyterian Church and raised $21 for The Sun-Telegraph's Milk and Ice Fund.

PLAYGROUND TRANSFER PROPOSED IN COUNCIL

Major baseball diamonds and swimming pools formerly under the jurisdiction of North Side Playground Association, may be transferred to the Bureau of Recreation, Department of Public Works. A resolution to that effect was presented in Council today. The following playgrounds and pools figuring in the proposed change are: Fredericks, Fineview, Pleasant Valley, McKnight, Schlein, Troy Hill playgrounds and Roberta Lang, Troy Hill, Riverview and Lake Elizabeth swimming pools. The children's playgrounds at the parks would continue to be under the supervision of the association.

BUGS BAER Says

HOUSTON, June 29.

ONE thing we agree with the Democrats about the oil scandal.

We bought Liberty bonds for five years and then discovered that an oil duke was giving them away free.

Frank Roosevelt says that children, the birds and the animals all love Al Smith.

Which makes Al the next President, if the children, the birds and animals have a vote.

Even if the children and the birds bolt the ticket, Al can still be elected curator of the zoo.

Extracts from the Houston platform:

The last two administrations have been so putrid that they would make a polecat climb his own pole.

The foe is bow-legged with success.

The Republicans have made a bum out of the American farmer. The farmers have been driven bankrupt into the city. Going bankrupt in a city is a farmer's vacation. We hope the Democrats do not deprive him of that pleasure.

Sinclair owns the Republican party, lock, stock and barrel. The Republicans stole from the sick and wounded soldiers. The two bright angels of the last two administrations are the Folly Sisters of Politics, Privilege and Pillage.

Brother, that ain't no platform That's a complaint blank.

George, of Georgia, was tendered an honorary nomination and donated a testimonial panic.

Saying it with flowers in political campaigns means a beautiful bouquet of skunk cabbage brightened with sparkling sprays of poison ivy.

Al Smith listened to his nomination over the radio. Frank Roosevelt was singing Al's favorite selection, by request.

No matter who is nominated, the split delegate from Guam grabs his banner and dashes around the aisles.

For the benefit of the bewildered majority, we wish to explain that a split delegate is not divided up the back like a breakfast mackerel.

A split delegate is physically whole, but mentally, he is a split delegate.

FIRST RAILS IN NEW LINK LAID

Officers of the Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway Company yesterday laid the first 100 feet of their new trunk lines between Pittsburgh and Baltimore and announced that they would be ready to let the contract for the 38-mile extension from Cochran's Mills to Connellsville within 90 days. The main line of the West Side Belt railway, owned by the Pittsburgh & West Virginia, was cut and 100-foot turnout was laid in a southeasterly direction. From this point the connecting link will be constructed.

HURT IN PLAY, DIES OF BLOOD POISONING

Blood poisoning resulting from a cut in the left leg caused the death of Vernon Warman, 11, of Imperial, in the Mercy Hospital last night. The boy was injured when he fell on a stick while playing in a lot near his home June 16. Infection developed and he was removed to the hospital last Saturday.

Hollywood Heralds Doings of Its Prominent Personages and Theaters Announce Their Attractions

Jackie Coogan and Father To Feature Song and Dance Act During Vaudeville Tour

By REGINA CREWE

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 29.

EVA VON BERNE has been kind enough to fulfill the prophecy that she will play opposite Jack Gilbert in "Mask of the Devil." Which isn't bad for a little girl whose sole English vocabulary consists of a verse from "I Can't Stop Loving That Man," which she studied after seeing a New York show. Eva is quite frank in admitting that she has never done any acting, and isn't at all sure that she can. But she's bound that her picture experience shall be productive of a lot of fun, so, in case she is shipped back to that dear Vienna, she'll at least take some pleasant memories with her. Although Eva is a born Serb, all her life, save the first few years, has been spent in the Austrian capital.

"A Single Man" would be lucky, indeed, to have Sue Carol in his picture. And even the married ones wouldn't protest too greatly. All of which is by way of telling you that they've just put Sue into the ingenue role of the picture bearing that title. It co-stars Lew Cody and Aileen Pringle. But Sue's role is a fat one, and she's probably smart enough to see that her name doesn't appear in too small type on the twenty-four-sheets.

Chicago gets a break when the Jack Coogans, Sr. and Jr., open there in a six-week vaudeville tour. The pair of Jacks will do a song and dance act, and it will be big Jack's first appearance on the boards since Jackie made "The Kid," with Charlie Chaplin also in the cast. Both Jackie's parents used to be stage folk. Incidentally, the boy—pardon, I mean the young man—is in the millionaire class as a result of his screen successes. Pop and the kid will split a rumored $6,500 of vaudeville money each Saturday night.

Roy Guisti, whom you may remember more easily as Roy D'Arcy, is engaged. This engagement is for a part in "The Redeeming Sin," in which Dolores Costello and Conrad Nagel will croon for Warner Brothers and Vitaphone. Roy recently told the court that his bankroll consisted of $325, while he was in the barrel for $34,531.09. He didn't say on what he had squandered the nine cents.

Winfield Sheehan, the man behind the gun on the Fox lot, is weeping salty tears because the picture business has kept him from helping the Democrats nominate Al Smith. Next to films, politics is the subject nearest Winnie's heart. He used to be a big shot among the New York sachems. For all I know, he may still be.

August 15 has been set as the eventful day upon which Erich von Stroheim will begin work directing Gloria Swanson in "The Swamp." Joe Kennedy also is interested in the day "Von" will finish.

Director King Vidor and his wife, Eleanor Boardman, will be back in town within the next week, after a three months' European vacation. They'll arrive in New York just too late to say "Howdy" to the Hunt Strombergs, who have already sailed on a two months' trip. Stromberg did the pin-hitting for Irving Thalberg, completing three Metro photoplays during Irving's honeymoon on the other side. George K. Arthur will dash across the pond to dear ol' Lunnon as soon as his present picture is completed. He may find time to visit his native Scotland—but it will be a tight race.

"The Cohens and Kellys" will next take a trip to Atlantic City, and the tour will be personally conducted by Universal in the person of William J. Craft, who will handle the megaphone end of the production. I'm sure the Cohens will feel at home. But I think the next time the Kellys should get a break. Why not make "The Cohens and Kellys at Kilarney" for the next one.

"The Main Event" was, and is, the name of a picture. It was, and is, about a prize fight. Charlie Delaney was one of the pugs—the winner, by the way. Anyhow, he did so well that he has been selected to play with Alice White when Alice makes her bow as a star in the role of Trixie Dugan in "Show Girl." Al Santell will direct.

SHOW FREAKS IN BILLS

Among the freaks in "Wagner Brothers' Side Show," the stags feature in the Davis next week, is Jean Eugene, half man and half woman. "A Thief in the Dark," a mystery photoplay, will be shown.

"The Nervous Wreck," which the Nixon Players will present in the Nixon next week, is a comedy by Omer Davis, in which Harry Bannister and Katherine Wilson will play the leading roles.

"The Cradle Snatchers," a comedy of last season, will be the offering of the George Sharp Players in the Pitt next week. In it John Moore, Gorden Anderson and George Baxter will flirt with Mabel Kroman, Alice Ann Baker and Brown Mehard.

BOYS GET LIFE TERMS FOR ENTERING HOME

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 29.—Found guilty of entering a home here, Danny Colton, 19, and his brother Robert, 21, were sentenced to life imprisonment today. They had previously received indeterminate sentences. Before sentencing the men the judge had made an investigation which showed the defendants had assaulted several girls here.

Newlyweds Get Laughs, Hall Discovers

The giggling season is on! As long as people snicker at newlyweds, June will always be a month when the laughs come thick and fast.

Despite the sophistication of modern life, brides still blush and bridegrooms are still nervous—at least for the first few days.

"Newlyweds always get a big laugh," remarked James Hall the other day. "In fact, I've given them many a one myself. Having been fortunate—or unlucky, depending on how you look at it—in never having married myself, I haven't been able to appreciate the discomfiture that this universal giggling brings to the newlyweds until just recently.

"In 'Just Married,' in which Ruth Taylor and I are starred, we spend considerable time walking around the deck of a ship at sea. I am not married, but I have a 'Just Married' sign chalked on the back of my coat and naturally get quite a laugh from the passengers as we walk down the deck. I'm afraid there would be more single men in the world if they went through an act like this."

POLICE MAY BAR 'THE CAPTIVE' FROM PGH.

Presentation of "The Captive," the play billed to appear at the Gayety Theater the week of July 9, may be prevented by the police, Inspector John J. Clancey said. In view of the fact that it has been suppressed by the police in New York and other cities, not even a single performance may be tolerated here, he declared.

The Pittsburgh Council of Churches is expected to protest against the production. Several ministers, including the Rev. Dr. W. I. Wishart, president of that body, expressed disapproval when they heard that "The Captive" had been booked for performance in Pittsburgh.

FRENCH AUTHOR

It is a study in psychopathy by Edouard Bourdet, French playwright, and had its premiere at the Theater Femina in Paris March 6, 1926. The English version, by Arthur Hornblow, Jr., was first produced in the United States at the Empire Theater in New York City, September 29, 1926, with a distinguished cast including Helen Menken as Irene de Montcel.

"This is a matter for Director of Public Safety Clark," said Clancey, in whose district the Gayety lies, when he heard that "The Captive" was coming. "I will take it up with my superiors at once. We watch all plays and censor those that are objectionable. Censors will certainly be on hand when the first performance of this piece is given, and in view of its reported character and the action taken by the police elsewhere it is possible that not even the first performance will be allowed."

CHURCHES OPPOSE

"The Council of Churches," said Dr. Wishart, "will use every possible aid and influence to prevent the presentation of 'The Captive' here. Every moral force ought to be against that sort of thing. I will get in touch with the executive committee at once and arrange a meeting to protest against the production or take such other action as may be necessary."

A number of plays of questionable moral character have been given in Pittsburgh in recent years without police interference. "The Demi-Virgin" was suppressed, however, and "White Cargo" was censored.

COUNTY'S INDIAN TIRES OF BIG CITY

Chief Eagle Ribs, full-blooded Blackfoot Indian, of the Browning, Mont., reservation, is tired of Allegheny county and lonesome for his pals on the reservation. He wants to go back home and be among his tribesmen.

For the past few months, Chief Eagle Ribs and his wife, Princess Lone Star, and their adopted son, Joe, 13, have been quartered at the South County Park. Eagle Ribs is caretaker of the bison and deer in the park.

Director of County Parks Paul B. Riis informed County Commissioners that the chieftain and his family want to go back home. "They are lonesome, and I guess the best thing is to let them go," the director said. The chief intends to load his tepee and depart August 15.

Another Indian from the same reservation will be brought here to succeed Eagle Ribs. Commissioners appropriated $350 to pay the transportation of the new redskin and his family.

HINDUSTAN ASSOCIATION PICNIC ON THE FOURTH

The annual picnic of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Hindustan Association of America will be held on the afternoon of July 4 at the farm of Attorney Andrew Smith, Cedar boulevard, Mt. Lebanon. Tennis and other outdoor sports will be features of the picnic.

Nine out of ten buy Vess Dry in the friendly family size

NINE out of ten people of this city who staked a nickel to make us prove that Vess Dry is as pure, delicious and refreshing as any other ginger ale, regardless of price, have rewarded our efforts to give them this fine drink, by afterwards buying it in the family-size bottle which contains four full glasses yet costs but 15 cents.

It's the common sense way to buy Vess Dry. There's not a time during the day when you or some member of your family will not appreciate a glass of this delightfully invigorating drink. And it costs so little to keep a family-size bottle always handy in the ice-box.

Why Vess Dry shouldn't be judged by price—

Fancy labels, gold foil and other frills and trimmings add greatly to the cost of beverages but cannot add to the quality. The cost of shipping water and filled bottles also must be taken into consideration. By selling Vess Dry in our own distinctive bottles and bottling it right here in town we can save this expense and pass the saving along to you in greater quality at less price.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

THE IMMOVABLE SEX

NEXT to a stalled motor car, the hardest thing on earth to budge is a man's mind! Next to Niagara, the hardest thing to turn out of its course is the current of his thoughts.

A woman's ideas "just spring into her head," but a man's come by the slow process of geological formation. And once SET, they are as immovable as the Rock of Gibraltar.

The only thing more difficult than to get a brand NEW idea into a man's head and consciousness is to get it OUT again.

HELEN ROWLAND

Take the love-idea, for instance. While a man is still trying to decide whether a girl's eyes are blue, gray or green, she has already decided on the color scheme for the wedding and is planning the living room curtains. By the time the love-idea has penetrated his consciousness, she has been waiting at the church, mentally, for him so long that she is ready to topple over into his arms from sheer fatigue.

But once he gets the impression that a woman is in love with him, it sinks in like a laundry mark, and no acid can remove it—not even her marriage to another man!

No doubt it took years of nagging for Eve to awaken Adam's clothes-consciousness. And after that it took centuries to get him out of petticoats and into trousers.

But trousers, once established, have clung to him for hundreds of years. While women have been changing from hoopskirts to bustles, from pantalettes to long trails, and from trails to bare knees and knickerbockers, man has gone right on placidly wearing the same trousers, the same swallow tail coat and the same silk hat for the last century.

Next to getting a man started in any direction, the hardest thing on earth is to stop him! It takes three full weeks, every autumn, to persuade him to shut the front door behind him—and three more weeks, every spring, to coax him to leave it open after him. He has to be threatened with pneumonia before he will wear his golf-sweater in March; but he has to be threatened with sunstroke before he will take it off in June. He is a creature of habit!

A woman no longer faints from astonishment when her husband glances at her last season's hat and remarks, "I like that new lid you've got on!" She knows that, while he has been looking at it for months, it has only just reached his consciousness as she is ready to throw it away.

Woman is the changeable, discontented, progressive sex. Her thoughts and opinions are written in rainbow-water. But a man's are set down in indelible ink! His heart may change—but his mind, NEVER!

JUNE SYNONYMS -:- -:- By Fanny Darrell

RINGS, Romance and Roses! These are the June Synomyms!

And what sweeter words were there ever heard in all the whole, wide world? For June has ever been accepted as the Lover's month and so these three words have come to be accepted as synonymous with this loveliest of all months.

Romance—when hearts beat faster and everything seems more beautiful; when rose-colored spectacles color everything with a soft glory to the eyes of those in love.

Roses—which shed their sweet perfume and nod a benediction on the happy lovers who seek solitude in the bowers made fragrant with their loveliness.

Rings—of golden glory which bind two hearts into one and are the outward symbol of the inward happiness and glory of Love.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.
U.S. Senator from New York

Pure Air a Primary Need of Life

HABIT is a strange thing. And when we study our habits one by one, we learn how inconsistent we really are. I'll give you an example:

DR. COPELAND

Suppose you were to come to my house and wanted to wash your hands. Suppose I took you to a soiled wash bowl filled with dirty water and offered you a soiled towel. What would you do?

If I stood by to watch, you would gingerly dip the ends of your fingers in the water, scowl at the dirty towel and take out your handkerchief to dry your fingers. As soon as possible, without openly insulting me, you would take your departure, vowing never to visit my home again.

If I handed you a dirty glass, filled with dirty water, in response to your request for a drink, you would dash it in my face and challenge me to a duel. I wouldn't blame you.

You wouldn't eat from a soiled plate, with a fork covered with dried food from previous use. Why not?

Of course, these questions demand no answer It is perfectly apparent why.

But why are we so fastidious about what we take into our mouths, when we are so indifferent as to what we take into our noses and lungs? We won't eat dirt, but we are perfectly willing to breathe dirty air

I can invite you into a room having an atmosphere filled with smoke, fumes and germs Without the slightest hesitation you walk in, giving no thought to what such air means to your health You balk at the dirty water and unclean dishes, but you are indifferent to a more important form of filth

Not long ago a prominent health official made a serious charge against polluted air He considers that foul air, heavy with soot and poisonous gases, in the cause of 60 per cent more deaths than all the infectious diseases combined.

The lungs of coal miners are packed with black soot. Just as water pipes become clogged with the deposits from the fluid, the lungs become clogged with the impurities breathed in with unclean air.

Nothing is more important than to have during every hour of our lives an abundance of pure air. Too often, skinny, emanciated, poorly nourished individuals go along without knowledge that all their ills can be traced to poor air and insufficient air.

Food cannot nourish and cells cannot prosper unless an abundance of pure oxygen is breathed into widely opened lungs. An abundance of good air is as essential as a never-failing supply of good food.

Clean hands, a pure heart and a flood of uncontaminated air will insure health and long life.

Answers to Health Queries

J. G. Q.—What will help enlarged pores and act as a skin bleach?

A.—The former may be helped by application of hot and cold compresses, used alternately for five or ten minutes night and morning. Equal parts of lemon juice and peroxide will act as a bleach for the skin.

Regular sized jars, 50c and 75c—Economy size, $1.25.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Saturday, June 30

THIS day may be written down as a memorable one because of the sudden and entirely unforeseen nature of the changes and opportunities presenting themselves. Important change is presaged, but with the predisposition to industry, patience and responsibility much substantial benefit may accrue. and wise manipulation are sure to eventually bring due returns.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of an important and possible radical change of interests and environment, and these should bring benefits of endurance and stability if wisdom and prudence be exercised.

A child born on this day may have great ingenuity, skill and originality and at the same time be practical and industrious. It should have an eventful career.

By ELEANOR GALE

Peg and Betty

DEAR MISS GALE:

We are two young girls in our teens, both blondes. We often see a fellow that's just moved into our town. We aren't acquainted with him, but whenever he sees us he always smiles, but never speaks. Do you think he likes us and would like to get better acquainted with us? Could you suggest a way to get to know him better? We both are in love with him and can't tell which he likes the best. Thanking you in advance, we are

PEG AND BETTY.

Leave it to the boy to secure an introduction to you, my dears. If he likes you he will find a way.

Unfair

DEAR MISS GALE:

Have been reading your column for the last couple of years and find it both interesting and comic. At times some very wise questions are asked, while others ask very silly ones. As for me, I'm writing for some advice which I need, and need very badly. While reading this letter, just picture yourself in my shoes. The following is my trouble: I have been going with John for about two years, steady, but have known him for about two and one-half years. For these last two years he has been keeping company with me at an average of three times a week. When I met him I did not like him at all, but as I'm not so very good looking, thought I had better take what was thrown in my path. Well, afterwards I got to like him a whole lot, and now I fear it is love. In fact, I know it is, because when he asked me to be his wife, I answered "yes." No one knows about it but his mother and my own. My mother approved, but said that I should wait for about two or three years. When I told him this he said he didn't care if he never got married and that he didn't mind waiting that long, because he was thinking of waiting for about four or five years himself. Don't you think that if he really loved me he would want to rush this marriage? I should like to get married this coming fall, but wouldn't dare tell him that, although I have thrown pretty good hints at times. If I ask him to come up to the house more than three times a week he gets angry, and absolutely will not come oftener than three times. He always says that three times is plenty, but as I have no girl friends, and do not belong to any kind of a club or lodge, I find that out of the seven nights I am at home four. I get so lonesome, as there are only mother, father and myself. He hasn't as yet given me an engagement ring, but I am undecided upon what to do, accept it or not. I love him, and can't ever wait until date nights arrive, as I get so lonesome for him. As for calling me on the phone, he absolutely will not do it. He said that if I want to talk to him I should call him. I do this, too. I don't know his reason for not calling, because both he and myself have a phone in the house. Mother and father like him, as does almost everybody else. On Sunday afternoons he won't even come up. Sometimes on date nights he will get to my house at about 8:30, 8:45 and even as late as 9 o'clock, and when he does come that late, I know that I should tell him I can't see him, but oh, it would hurt me more than him, as I can hardly ever wait until I see him. He has a car, so he hasn't any excuses saying the street cars were late. I object to a young fellow drinking, and that is something he doesn't do (very often). He says he never drinks, but at a party once he took a drink of wine that was offered to him. He heard about it from me, and he never even once tried to make any excuses. I am 19 and he is four years older. I know his whole family, and like them all. I imagine they like me, too, because they always invite me up to their houses. Everybody says John likes me, but I am in doubt about that statement. Once he and I and another couple, who are married, but younger than us, were visiting some friends. This friend who we were visiting said, "Look at that Louise, would you, married to Frank, and younger than either you or John. When are you two going to get married?" I replied, "I have better sense." I just said this to be funny, but it sort of hit John on the head. He said, "And I have still better sense." When he said that, it sure did hurt my feelings, although I did not show it (at the time). I never cheat on him, so he can't say that is the reason he treats me as he does. I never go out with any girls either. I love him, but at times I wonder, "do I really, or is it just "puppy love?" Here is my question that I'd like you to solve out for me. Do you think he loves me? Or doesn't he? I am, I believe, being treated

UNFAIR.

He must care for you, my dear, or he wouldn't come to see you so regularly. Try to accept him as he is, since he really does nothing to show that he has lost interest in him. Go out with girls, though. You are missing a great deal in having no girl friends.

French Lassie

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have just a small heart story about a boy I have been going with for the past year. At first he was so devoted—called me up every day—now I'm lucky if he calls twice a week. I see him three times a week. You might think me selfish. I love him a great deal—and that's why I guess this molehill looks like a mountain to me. Do you think his love has waned, Miss Gale? I remain,

FRENCH LASSIE.

He must still like you, my dear, or he wouldn't come to see you so frequently. Don't worry so much about it.

CORKSCREWS WIN—WILL ROGERS

By WILL ROGERS

HOUSTON, Tex., June 29.—If you think the Democratic party is not a large party, you just sit day after day and count the men in it that are nominaed.

There was candidate names presented down here, that the newspaper men had to go back to old United States census reports, to find any mention of them.

Most of the speeches were not nominations, they were letters of introductions.

I knew Kansas would furnish the comedy. What Georgia was to the Republican convention, why Kansas was to the Democrats. Some fellow talked for two hours nobody knew who he was. You couldn't tell who he was talking for or against and when he finally finished and mentioned his man, we were more in the dark than before.

If I had been him, out of respect for my candidate after I finished my speech, I wouldn't have mentioned who it was. No one would ever suspected and perhaps a good man's name would have been saved.

Tom Taggart, of Indiana, had his usual trading material nominated.

WON BY CORKSCREWS

Senator George rallied the drys about him, but when they left the hall and the Smith delegates got their corkscrews working, George was left stranded on a pile of empties higher than the convention hall.

Everybody was disappointed that Jim Reed didn't nominate himself, and after Jim heard the man that did it, I imagine he wished he had. Jim could have taken that convention crowd and had 'em hollering their badges off.

Franklin Roosevelt, a fine and wonderful man, who has devoted his life to nominating Al Smith, did his act from memory.

Franklin Roosevelt could have gotten far in the Democratic party himself but he has his act all perfected and don't like to go to the trouble of learning something else. So he just seems satisfied going through life nominating Al Smith.

DUMB ANIMALS

It was a fine speech. It always has been, but it's always been ahead of its time. Now he has 'em believing it. The only part I didn't agree with is where he said that Al was "good to women and children and dumb animals, and he insinuated that the Republican President and nominee were not. Now Franklin, you are wrong about the Republicans and the dumb animals. They just thrive on dumb animals. They are like Lincoln with the poor. They must love 'em for they have so many of them in the party, and I even believe that the Republicans like children, not perhaps as children but they are the material of which voters are made in a few years. So I believe the Republicans would be kind to 'em just so they would grow into manhood quicker.

NEAR CABINET SPEECH

Gov. Ritchie, who jumped when he saw the horse first get scared, and not after the runaway, had gotten dangerous, made his usual to the point, and forceful speech, seconding his own far-sightedness. It was just on the verge of a cabinet speech.

I have head so much at this convention about "getting back to the old Jeffersonian principles," that being an amateur I am in doubt as to why they left them in the first place.

All you hear about here is the amount of graft and corruption, but each man wants to put his nominee where it is going on.

Why, if these offices are as bad as they say they are, I wouldn't want a decent friend to even want to go in them.

They stalled with the platform, and now that it is done there is not a wire walker in America than can stand on it.

BOQUET FOR HOUSTON

But say, the jokes are all on the convention, and no one can find one on the town. I haven't heard one speck of criticism of the way the whole thing has been handled. It's been simply marvelous. The whole state has done its part. Beautiful hall, hospitality and how, and the weather has always been a cool breeze, and nights you sleep good when you get a chance. Old Texas has done herself proud, and if they don't get a winner out of it, it won't be the fault of hers.

It's got to a point here now where state delegations will "caucus" on a half quart.

So hurrah for Texas and Houston. Viva Senor Smith.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Exodus From City Creates Void in Social Calendar as Three Busy Days Close Season

SOCIETY WOMEN -:- DOG SHOW CATALOGUE COMMITTEE -:- HOSPITAL BENEFIT

TODAY, and tomorrow, and Monday offer enough events to keep society folks busy right here in the city, but after that there is just nothing—unless some interesting affairs are planned very, very soon. And there isn't much chance of anything like that happening now that everyone is getting ready to go away to Watch Hill, to Long Island, to Canada, to Connecticut or to Maine. Those who have decided on an European summer have already deserted the city.

We might just as well accept the situation—the usual "societyless days" of July and August. Just one bit of enjoyment these few folks staying in the city this summer will have is keeping in touch with their friends at the various resorts, and reading about what these folks are doing.

ANYWAY, what one might call the last three days of the season will be full of attraction for those who like weddings, and dog shows, and dinners, and dances.

The chief event of today, as of course you are aware, is the debut of Virginia Willock, daughter of the Frank Scott Willocks, of Sewickley. Virginia is being presented at a garden party, you remember, which her parents are giving this afternoon at the Allegheny Country Club.

Today is a full one for this young June bud. Tonight her parents will entertain at a dinner at the clubhouse. There will be about 60 guests, I believe. And of course dancing will be the merry end of a perfect debutante's day.

MARJORIE HARBISON, daughter of the Ralph W. Harbisons, will have rather a large wedding, it seems. She will wed, you'll recall, Walter Brooke Stabler, son of the Caleb Stablers, of Wilmington, Del., on Monday, in the Sewickley Presbyterian Church.

Of course Marjorie is being much entertained, as one might expect when a Harbison is about to marry.

Mrs. Eugene Kipp, of Lark Inn Field, gave a bridge in her home for Marjorie this afternoon.

ANNE SHIRAS is at Southampton, you know. You remember, don't you, that a short time ago Anne went there to join the University Players? Well, she will appear with the players on July 4, 5, 6 and 7 when they will give A. A. "Mr. Pim Passes By." Later month, July 11, to be exact, ayers will give the same production in West Hampton, and on July 12 and 13 at East Hampton.

I'M sure many society folks remember the John S. Phippses, of Westbury, Long Island, who used to live in Pittsburgh. The Phipps family has kept in touch with friends ever since their departure and meet many of them, too, at Palm Beach and other resorts.

You're interested, I'm sure, in the wedding of their son, John Howard Phipps. Elinor Klapp, daughter of the Eugene Klapps, of New York, became the bride of the young Mr. Phipps Tuesday at a fashionable wedding in the Episcopal Church at Sandwich, Mass.

THE marriage of Miss Dorothy Baum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Baum, of Washington, Pa., and Cornelius Henry Bonner, son of Mr. and Mrs. David H. Bonner, of Pittsburgh, was solemnized last night at 6:30 o'clock in the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Washington by the Rev. Dr. Richard B. Cuthbert, superintendent of the Pittsburgh district of the Methodist Episcopal Church, assisted by the Rev. John F. Jose. Mrs. Charles Seamans, of Uniontown, was matron of honor and the bride's other attendants were Miss Louise Grayson and Miss Esther Ritchie, of Washington; Mrs. John Morris, of Wilmington, Del.; Mrs. Edward McEachron, of Hartsdale, N. Y.; Mrs. Henry Heppenstall, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Granville Cushing Baum, of Pittsburgh. Florence K. Semans and Laura Wiley were flower girls. Andrew Robb, of Crafton, was best man and the ushers included Knoll Montgomery, of Lansdale; Daniel H. Gibson and Granville C. Baum, of Pittsburgh; Henry Heppenstall, of Philadelphia, and Alexander Wiley and Alexander McIlvaine, of Washington.

THE marriage of Miss Edna McConaghy, of the East End, and Forest J. Platt, of Valencia, was solemnized yesterday at 4:30 o'clock in the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Orgill, in Stanton Heights, by the Rev. J. A. Tinker, pastor of the First Primitive Methodist Church. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, John Lawrence McConaghy, wore shell pink chiffon and silver lace, and carried a shower of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley.

Her cousin, Mrs. Miriam Brunt, as matron of honor, appeared in canary chiffon and wore a corsage of yellow rosebuds. Miss Anne Gibbons, of Gibsonia, was bridesmaid, wearing orchid chiffon with a corsage of pink rosebuds. Mrs. E. P. Stroble, of Valencia, sister of the bridegroom, played the wedding music. Walter Platt was his brother's best man, and the ushers included L. E. Orgill, of Pottstown, and S. Arthur Brunt, of Pittsburgh, cousins of the bride. A reception and dinner followed the ceremony. After an eastern trip, Mr. and Mrs. Platt will be at home in Beaver.

MR. AND MRS. WALTER A. SCOTT, of Elgin avenue, have announced the marriage of their sister, Miss Louella Scott, and Barton Stevenson, of Elgin avenue, which was solemnized Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson are taking an extensive motor trip and after September 1 will be at home in Elgin avenue.

MISS ELIZABETH DAUGHERTY, of Callery street, and Miss Martha Arnold, of Aiken avenue, will sail tomorrow to spend the summer abroad.

MRS. IRENE D'EMILIO, of College avenue, will return home next month from Italy, where she made her debut in grand opera at Milan on April 23.

Patricia Pitt

MRS. L. W. YOUNG

Mrs. Ledlie Watt Young is one of the committee women working on the catalog for the dog show to be held tomorrow at Allegheny Country Club show ring.

MARY OLIVER

Miss Mary Oliver is assisting in arranging the catalog for the dog show which is being given under the direction of the newly-organized Kennel Club.

MRS. GEORGE A. KELLY, III

Mrs. George A. Kelly, III, is also on the committee to catalog the entries. Proceeds will go to the woman's auxiliary, Allegheny General Hospital.

BANQUET TO CLOSE PHI MU CONVENTION

THE two-day Phi Mu fraternity province convention will come to a close tonight with the banquet in the William Penn Hotel. A business session this morning was followed by a trip to the H. J. Heinz plant. Business was transacted yesterday at the sessions which were held in Webster Hall and last night's event was a picnic at Piney Fork on the Library road. Mrs. Beryl Molleson, of Ithaca, district president, has presided at all sessions and in her honor the social affairs have been arranged.

THE educational department of the Business and Professional Women's Club has presented awards for scholastic attainment and record to four students in three of the city's business schools. Miss Elvira Bleadinghiser, state director of the club, presented Miss Vola Townsend, of Pittsburgh Academy, with an award; Miss Esther Katten, chairman of the club constitutional committee, presented the second to Miss Margaret Jane Thomas, of Business High, while Miss Gertrude Gordon, first vice president, made the awards to Miss Dorothy Katherine Crowe, of the day students, and Miss Rubina Bosco, of the evening students, at the Grace Martin Secretarial School.

THE Oliver Club will have a dinner tomorrow night at Haller's tea room, Mt. Lebanon. The last entertainment was at the home of Miss Catherine Born, Suncrest avenue.

INSTEAD of the usual monthly luncheon, the June meeting of the Alpha Psi Sorority will take the form of a picnic at the home of Mrs. Robert McClure, Seventh streeet, Beaver, tomorrow. Mrs. A. I. Brigham, of Hampton avenue, Wilkinsburg, is chairman for the day.

TO Mrs. B. C. Tatum undoubtedly belongs credit for the success of yesterday's luncheon given by the Oakland Woman's Club at the Pines. It was one of the largest and most enjoyable annual affairs the club has ever held. Nearly 100 covers were laid at the long flower-decked tables. The afternoon was spent at cards and other games arranged by Miss Emma Doherty. Mrs. E. H. Bingler, the new executive, presided, the invocation being offered by her husband. A letter was read by Miss Doherty concerning the club's scholarship which has been placed in the social work department at Margaret Morrison College.

THE juniors of the Oakmont Woman's Club closed their season last night with a dinner dance for about 60 guests at the Willows. Miss Jeannette Winchester is the new junior president and Miss Dorothy Lees was chairman for last night's event.

Don't Cry Over Spilt Milk

SOME years ago it would have been a real misfortune to have broken or overturned a bottle of milk, but today there are more than two thousand neighborhood stores with coolers well stocked with naturally pure Harmony Milk.

Of course, sonny does not understand and is broken hearted over his accident, but Mother knows that his tears will quickly change to a smile when she sends him for another bottle of Harmony.

Children do not realize the value in strength and health of the Harmony Milk they drink. They are interested only in the cool refreshing beverage.

They like it.

JUNE WEDDINGS BELOW DIVORCES

The divorce mill won over the June wedding machine yesterday when Common Pleas Court judges disposed of 72 pending divorce actions. Judge James B. Drew established the record of handling 16 cases in about three hours.

And even though the mill worked fast, it did not run out of work for more grist in the form of nine new cases poured into the assignmen room. Eight women and one man composed the new crop of those who sought to scuttle their life partnerships. The new cases:

Mrs. Ada Schusler, 1337 Cordova road, against Frank W. Schusler, 232 South Highland avenue, charging desertion.

Mrs. Helen W. Blaxham, 178 Warrington avenue, against John W. Blaxham, Cleveland, O., desertion.

Mrs. Ada Belle Minneman, 318 McKee place, against Gustave E. Minneman, 114 South Twentieth street, desertion.

Mrs. May E. Fairley, 238 Alpine avenue, against Samuel R. Fairley, 102 Daisy avenue, cruelty.

Mrs. Jenny Weiss, 2037 Center avenue, against George Weiss, same address, cruelty.

Mrs. Anna Goldman, 1255 Morningside avenue, against Frank Goldman, 1170 Chislett street, desertion.

Mrs. Clara M. MacDonald, 1133 North Highland avenue, against Davis R. MacDonald, 628 North Euclid avenue, desertion.

John Getinello, 1415 Electric avenue, North Braddock, against Mrs. Lena Caruso Getinello, same address, cruelty.

Mrs. Martha B. Kirchenbower, 601 Kirtland street, against William H. Kirchenbower, Mission Hills, cruelty.

57th ANNIVERSARY

FINAL DAY

OUR anniversary celebrations, lasting as they do a full month, are not merely selling events—they are friendship-builders. They emphasize in substantial form the Kaufmann year-round principles of enterprise, energy, true worth and fair, equitable prices. They are unhurried, comfortable-to-shop-in. And they differ in other ways... Our promise to the public, in return for their patronage, was this: "All specially-priced items remain on sale at the same price throughout the entire month, or until the quantity is sold. Only fresh, NEW, seasonable goods will be offered, equal in quality to those regularly sold in this store." Until 6 p. m. to-morrow—last day of our greatest Anniversary—these principles will govern!

MARATHON DANCERS TO SHARE RECEIPTS

Penna. Democrats Hope to Carry State With Smith

AS POLL PROGRESSES

SECOND NEWS SECTION — THE SUN-TELEGRAPH — SPORTS FEATURES

FRIDAY, JUNE 29, 1928

DO YOU KNOW YOUR OWN "TRAFFIC COP?"

SUN-TELEGRAPH COUNT

The Sun-Telegraph's presidential straw vote—"Do you prefer Hoover or Smith?"—is reaching thousands of Pittsburghers daily as the voting machines used in the poll are changed every day. Here are voters crowding the machines to register their sentiments at Bell Telephone Building (top) and Hotel Henry.

DANCERS TO SHARE IN "GATE"

Nine couples competing in the Duquesne Garden dance marathon were cheered when it was announced that, starting today, they would share in the daily receipts. Twenty per cent of the net proceeds will be pooled for the winning couples, to augment the $2,000 first prize, $1,000 second prize and $500 third prize which had been promised. The $3,500 for the three prizes today was deposited in a local bank. The pool will be announced each day to the dancers.

This announcement came on the heels of the closing of the Negro marathon in Motor Square Garden, because of a lack of patronage after three couples had danced 432 hours to a local record. The Motor Square shuffle ended at 1 o'clock this morning. The $1,000 prize money will be split six ways.

The three couples in at the finish were Clara and Rufus McCraw, Winslow street; Minnie Patele, Homestead, and Cyrus Miller, Munhall; and Katherine Redman, Wakefield street, and Frank Pate, Homestead.

John Farina and Alexis Ardolino, promoters of the International Colored Dancing championship got eye strain looking for cash at the gate and decided that it was no use to buck the fates and try to coax people out to see their somnambulistic dancers.

In Duquesne Garden, where nine couples began the 378th hour at 2 o'clock this afternoon, it was stated the attendance was not so good. Last night's rain was said to have cut heavily into the receipts.

The youngest marathon, that in Stahl's Gardens, Homestead, turned 66 hours at 2 o'clock this afternoon with 21 couples still in the quest of cash and wearness.

Sore feet have not bothered the hoofers as much as sore teeth. Twice within 24 hours a dentist had to be summoned to treat the teeth of male dancers. Yesterday Joe Sapino was the victim and at 3 o'clock this morning "Happy" Marmillo needed a dentist. Each lost a tooth in the operations, performed during rest periods. A mock marriage will be held tonight.

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 29.—Seven and a half couples remained in the running at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the local marathon. They had danced 277 hours.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, June 29.—The mad marathon of Milt Crandall's went into the four hundred and forty-fourth hour at 10 o'clock this morning here with nine couples on the floor. None have dropped out of the contest for $5,000 first prize for more than 90 hours. Of the nine still in the dance three teams are from Pittsburgh.

Eddie Leonard and Marianne Jacque, of Pittsburgh, stated this morning they did not think they would stay in the contest much longer, as it seemed to them no winners would be made, as everyone on the floor is determined to stick.

However, some of the teams look as though they are about ready to give up. Mary Promitis, Bill Busch's partner, has been ill all night and is just about hanging on.

Emily Receives an Order From Mrs. Rossiter to Redecorate Her House

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Emily Day and Kitten are daughters of a worker in the Rossiter factory. Both are prevented by poverty from mingling with the socially elect of the little town. Emily has made an ideal of Kent Rossiter. Mary Nolan, whose father keeps a "speakeasy," is devoted to her. Mrs. Frances Haiden, a wealthy interior decorator, takes an interest in her and tells her the only aristocracy is that of work. She gets a job with Mrs. Haiden. Her father dies and Rossiter offers help, which her mother declines. Kitten, Emily's sister, is going with a wild crowd and is running close to danger. Ted tries to show Kitten that wild parties don't pay. Every morning Emily finds roses on the doorknob from Kingdon Coles. Marty goes in Judge Morrow's office, Emily is jealous.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

SHE bought the newspaper at noon and carried it back to the shop, folding it so the article was on the outside. And whenever she had an idle moment she would read it, always with a new thrill.

Once, glancing up, she saw a man who sometimes went into Judge Morrow's office standing with a newspaper in his hand. His hat was on the back of his head and he scowled. She could see the headlines and knew he was reading the editorial about Kent.

Suddenly the man jerked his shoulder and pushed his hat still further back. She got the impression that he was very angry and wondered if Boss Morrow would mind if Kent was district attorney.

The man dashed up the stairs and she watched him, through the window, enter Morrow's office and put the paper on the desk. Another man stepped forward and the three read together.

They talked afterward and she speculated upon what they were saying. Had she heard she would not have understood.

When the first man shook his finger under the Judge's nose he was blustering, "You're back of this, Morrow."

The three eyed each other and the one who had been in the office inquired, more mildly, "What's the dope?"

The first exploded. "Can't you read? Ask him what's the dope!" Thrusting his chin toward the Judge.

Morrow was quiet though a purple shadow crept up his jowls. "You know what it's about. If you hadn't pulled that raw stuff on those bridge contracts! Whole county's one grand squawk.

"Think I'd throw this his way if he wasn't a half baked parlor pup? Know the name, don't you? Think it'll muffle the public yip for 'pure politics'?

"Supposing you highbinders look around the end of your ugly noses for once. Now get out; I'm busy."

Emily saw the two come down the stairs and walk away up the street together, red and silent.

When she started for home the lemon-colored roadster that used to come tearing up the hill and stop noisily before the Brents' was parked at the corner. Stella, looking oddly little and frightened, was in a corner of the seat.

Emily crossed to her gaily. "Skeets taking you out dear?"

"Just a ride up the river. Grand day for that." Stella laughed uneasily.

Emily stood by, embarrassed, trying to think of something to say. When Skeets came, finally, he put something in the back of the car. It was then Emily caught sight of two bags tucked away under the cover; a smart one half covered with labels; the other new and such a gaudy bag as Stella would buy.

She leaned over whispering while Skeets fooled with the engine. "Is it an elopment, Stell? You're going to be married? Oh, I hope you'll be happy!"

The other girl shot a nervous glance at Skeets, and Emily pressed her hand.

She looked backward at the corner. Stella was watching her and there were tears in the black eyes.

About this time a small, white-clad figure was sliding through the hedge toward the Brents.

Dottie hadn't talked. No one had been able to make her tell about the night in the St. John Mountains.

For this she was kept at home. She could stroll about the yard, but she had always to be within sight of the house. She had grown moody and resentful; her only interest was helping Kitten get out on her own escapades.

There was a tiny building at the back of the lot, which had been a play-house when the children were small; here the two youngsters kept a mirror and powder and rouge and earrings.

They went here now and Kitten made herself up. She felt very much the lady of the world with ear-drops dangling against her throat and her lips painted scarlet. Of course she couldn't do this at home for it always brought about trouble with Emily.

Presently she took the path up the hill which was not visible from her own home and hurried over to Main street. There she loitered, turning her head as cars passed. One stopped and she got in.

A dark face bending toward her, then; a long, slender hand touching hers for an instant.

"So you came? Lamb-child—"

Laughter rippled through her; she cuddled down on the cushions.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

FRANCES HAIDEN had gone to Atlantic City and now a matter of great importance had come up and there was only Emily to handle it.

Frances had been looking forward for some time to redecorating the north wing of the Rossiter home. Mrs. Rossiter had telephoned and she had been holding herself in readiness for a consultation. But the matter lagged through late summer and eventually Frances declared herself worn out and said she was going away for a rest.

"You can take care of things, my dear. There's a lot of intelligence in that fair head of yours."

But Emily was anxious. "What if Mrs. Rossiter should make up her mind, Frances? All in a rush and so critical she is—"

Frances laughed at that. "A good chance to try out your mettle. Of course you could telegraph me. Mrs. Rossiter won't, though."

But she did. It was the morning after Frances' departure that Mrs. Briggs telephoned.

DEMS HOPE TO CARRY PENNA.

By WILLIAM J. GRUNDISH,
Staff Correspondent.

HOUSTON, Tex., June 29.—The Pennsylvania delegation, jubilant over the nomination of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York for President, lost no time today in preparing for a campaign designed to break the grip in which the Republican party for six decades has held the state.

"With Smith as our Standard Bearer, we have a good chance to carry Pennsylvania," declared Thomas F. Farrell, chairman of the delegation, whose proudest moment came last night when he called 70½ of the State's 76 votes for the New York governor.

As far as Pennsylvania is concerned, there was only one fly in the ointment. That was the Prohibition plank. The majority of the delegation wanted a strong statement declaring for modification of the Volstead Act in favor of wine and beer at least but had given up hope, looking for nothing more than some meaningless compromise plank.

The fact that the plank finally adopted is more dry than wet did not appeal to many members of the delegation, although they recognized the political expediency of doing nothing to antagonize the dry sentiment in the southern and western states. They pointed out, in defense of the plank, that it is silent as far as modification is concerned, leaving that to future developments, and only pledges the nominee to an honest effort to enforce the law.

The Pennsylvania vote on the roll-call for president was a personal triumph for National Committeeman Joseph F. Guffey of Pittsburgh and climaxed a five-year battle made by him in the state in the interests of Gov. Smith. The night of the primary election, after receiving telegraphic returns from all parts of the state, he told reporters that Smith would have 69½ votes on the first ballot. This claim had been disputed by the anti-Smith forces of the state, headed by Vance G. McCormick, John A. McSparran, and Austin E. McCullough, who claimed from 12 to 20 votes.

GUFFEY FORECAST HOLDS

The Guffey prediction was correct in every detail when David L. Lawrence of Pittsburgh, secretary, polled the delegation just before the time came to announce the state's vote. Then G. Lawrence Strock of McChanicburg, in McCormick's own district, unexpectedly changed his vote from Cordell Hull to Smith and brought the total above the 70 mark.

The delegation's vote marked the complete rout of the McCormick-McSparran-McCullough forces in the state. Every delegate west of the mountains, with one exception, supported Smith. The single exception was J. Albert Reed, of California, Pa., who voted for James A. Reed, of Missouri, a second cousin.

The state's vote was: Smith, 70½; Cordell Hull, 2½; Vic Donahey, of Ohio, 1; Reed, 1; Huston Thompson, Colorado, 1.

M'SPARRAN FOR HULL

McSparran, counting one-half vote, and Lewis Beale, Mifflintown, and G. Willis Hartman, Harrisburg, voted for Hull. James H. Ross, Lancaster, supported Reed. Josiah W. Gitt, York, voted for Thompson. Four years ago, at the Madison Square Garden fiasco, Gitt voted for Thompson on every ballot. Thompson secured only two votes in the balloting last night, the other being cast by Sam T. Speers, Elkins, W. Va.

TIPSTAFF APPOINTMENT PUT OFF TILL SEPTEMBER

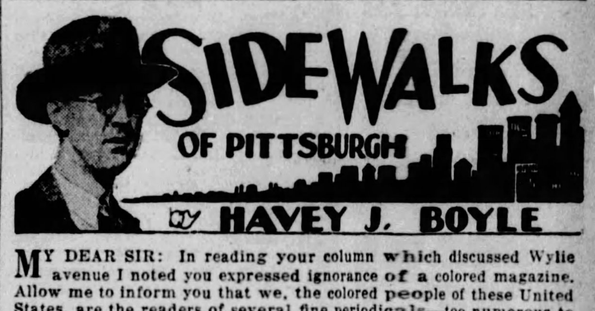
Judge John A. Evans, presiding jurist of Common Pleas Court, announced today that applications to fill the vacancy created by the death of George W. Berlin, court tipstaff, would not be considered before September.

PHOTOS BY SUN-TELEGRAPH PHOTOGRAPHER.

HE SHOULD BE A FRIEND OF YOURS

Wouldn't you like to drive to the office in the morning and speak thusly to your favorite "traffic cop" when he beams upon you—as though nothing ever happened to make him angry!—passing: "Good morning, Officer Rafferty"—or else, yell "Hi Teddy!" Well, The Sun-Telegraph's series, "Traffic Cops," will tell you how. This fellow today may be found downtown, but don't spend the day hunting for him when The Sun-Telegraph will tell you his name tomorrow.

YESTERDAY'S "TRAFFIC COP" WAS THAT SYMPHONY IN MOVEMENT AT SIXTH AND WOOD—THAT GENTLEMAN WHO HANDLES HIS JOB SO CAPABLY THAT THE GREATEST DANGER IS TRAFFIC BLOCKADE BY THOSE WHO WOULD STOP TO WATCH HIM. HE IS WELL KNOWN, ALBERT ATWOOD. HE LIVES AT 87 WYOMING STREET AND HAS BEEN POLICING EIGHT YEARS.



MY DEAR SIR: In reading your column which discussed Wylie avenue I noted you expressed ignorance of a colored magazine. Allow me to inform you that we, the colored people of these United States, are the readers of several fine periodicals—too numerous to mention. The leading one is the Crisis, edited by Prof. W. E. Burghardt Du Bois, one of the outstanding men of our race.

Prof. Du Bois is a graduate of Fiske University with an A. B. degree; Harvard A. B. and A. M.; Berlin, Ph. D., and was professor of economics at Atlanta University from 1896 to 1906. He is the author of several books and is in Who's Who—pages 201-205.

The art editor of the Crisis is a Negro woman now art teacher at the Pennsylvania State Normal School for Negroes, located at Cheney, Pa. Maybe, you didn't know the state maintains a normal school of the first class for Negroes, either. Get next to yourself. Visit Thumm's at 1400 Wylie avenue and get the low-down on the papers and magazines that are edited by colored people.

We need more of your kind to inform the people of both sides of our life. Remember, we all have good and bad. Many thanks to you for being broad enough to see and mention the good parts. Signed: Harry C. Nash.

National political conventions naturally recall the boast that every American boy has a chance to be president. A collection of the aims and ambitions among some of the boys around town indicates that only a few are real hot about the presidency. Among the things the boys, interviewed, want to be when they grow up, are: Railroad engineer, street car motorman, baseball player, driver of an express wagon, policeman, "brakey" on the railroad. At the age of 10 or 12, the formal functions around the White House seem a little pale compared to the excitement to be found in running a locomotive or in swinging a mace.

PEDESTRIANS stopped and gaped; policemen smiled, and motorists stopped to look. A man in a horse-drawn buggy was riding along Bigelow boulevard. As rare a sight as an airplane was 10 years ago.

A visit to the South Hills Country Club established that the old belief that golfers exaggerated about their ability at golf does not always hold true. It may be that South Hills golfers are more honest than brother golfers, but that is doubtful. At any rate, of the 30 or 40 men in the locker room, after having played their round, there was not one who did not chide himself over what he deemed a bad score. Golfers are far more honest than poker players, who seldom admit during the game how much they are ahead, and who seldom, if they lose, tell after the game the exact amount.

WHAT amazes the new applicant for a fishing license is that one license, for a reasonable fee, will permit the fishermen to keep all he can catch. We thought there would be a license for catching bass, under which permit one would have to throw back into the water all the muskies he caught; or that a permit would allow one to catch muskies, under which all the bass captured would be returned to their mothers' fins. This fishing business seems almost too easy.

Convention Day by Day

By

O. O. M'INTYRE

HOUSTON, TEX., June 29.

WHEN this appears I will be somewhere between Houston and New York. The worm has turned. I'm through with conventions. Two of them within a month is plenty, thank you, and the gentlemen who syndicate my piffle had better begin hunting right now for a new boy.

My hair has turned a new shade of gray and when I reach the Pennsylvania station I'm going to run through the streets kissing lamp posts and doing one of those tossing butter-cup dances.

The old front porch at the Ritz looks good to me and you'll find me rocking away pleasantly there for some time to come. I began to sour on politics at 9:15 Thursday morning.

By noon I had curdled into a clabber. Nothing in particular happened. It just came upon me all of a sudden that biggest bunk in our national life is politics.

There is more nasty scheming and double-crossing—and I don't exclude any party—than you will find in any other supposedly decent activity in the world. I do not mean there are not many earnest and patriotic men in both parties, but there are too many muggs and tinhorn sports.

If I had a son I would just as soon he would take up picking pockets as mingling with some men in national politics. He would become a scalawag in the end anyhow.

Still when I look back on the frenzied days that have passed there are many things I would not have missed for anything.

There was the fellow who could make his car lobes wiggle in Kansas City.

The porter on a Missouri Pacific train who read Greek poems in the original.

The waitress in a depot hashhouse who carried a white mouse about on her shoulder.

The taxi driver in Chicago who piloted me to Lincoln Park, escorted me through the zoo and refused to accept a tip.

The pleasant lady saleswoman in the Harvey Shop in the St. Louis depot who inquired about my dog.

The young redheaded railroad clerk at Palestine, Tex., who recognized me through a train window.

The pleasant daily visits with my aunt and sister in Kansas City.

The open-handed hospitality of Houston and its many excellent dinners.

The sweet-faced old lady in Houston who brought me a bunch of flowers from her garden two miles away.

The innumerable nice folk who went out of their way to come up to me on the streets and in public places to shake hands and pay little compliments.

The long and contentful talks with my wife in the intimacy that only train traveling affords.

All these are pleasant memories that politics and its shadiness cannot efface. And I shall treasure them. But no more political conventions. I'm through.

BOBO BAXTER— . . . . . The Cheering is Over

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

ADAM CARROLL, pianist-composer, will play a medley of his own compositions during the White Rock concert to be presented by James Caruso and his orchestra through the NBC System, including KDKA, at 8:30 o'clock tonight. Orchestral numbers will include the Grand March from "Le Prophete," by Meyerbeer, and the best known of the airs from Gilbert and Sullivan's light opera, "Iolanthe." Alvah Nichols will present a vocal solo, and Mr. Caruso's composition, "Playful and Pleasing," which will be given its premier performance, as a saxophone solo with orchestral accompaniment.

A distinctly Oriental color will be reflected by the Cities Service concert orchestra and the Cavaliers during their regular broadcast over the NBC system, including WCAE, at 8 o'clock. Under the direction of Rosario Bourdon, they will open with the latter's own composition, "The Cities Service March," swinging immediately into Moussourgsky's "Dance of the Persian Girls" and Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Song of India." A Czechoslovakian "Lullaby" will be sung by the Cavaliers, together with "Oft in the Stilly Night." A "Japanese Idyl" will be heard as a saxophone solo. The full orchestra also will play Levenson's "Pastorale Oriental" and Grieg's "Erotik."

An orchestra will play Grieg's "March of the Dwarfs" during the Wrigley review, which will be heard through the NBC system, including KDKA, at 9 o'clock. Other numbers by the orchestra will include Gershwin's "Song of the Flame" and "Rag Doll," by Brown. There will be instrumental and vocal solos, including "Dolly Dimples," as a xylophone solo; "My Heart Stood Still," played by a cornet soloist; "Moonbeams," from Victor Herbert's "Red Mill," appearing as a soprano solo, and "Harmony Rag," played as a banjo solo. A vocal duo will present "Because My Baby Don't Mean Maybe Now" and "Oh, Is She Mad at Me Now?"

During the Palmolive hour, to be broadcast over WCAE and other stations of the NBC System at 10 o'clock, Olive Palmer, coloratura soprano, will sing "Till I Wake," from the Indian Love Lyrics, accompanied by orchestra and quartet. She will also be heard in a duet with Paul Oliver, "My Gift to You," by Cadman, and her solo number will be Chaminade's "L'Ete." The ensemble feature will be "I'm Away from the World," followed by Geisler's "Farewell" and "Hawaiian Airs." The Revelers will offer "Breezin' Along" and the Negro spiritual "Gospel Train."

The Automatic Agitators' male quartet broadcast from KDKA at 10 o'clock will revive many of the old-time songs. The tenor and baritone will sing "The Jolly Beggars." The quartet will harmonize on a popular song medley, followed with a comic song, "Oh, I Must Go Home Tonight," and a love song, "Macushla." The banjoist will break in now and then to play a number.

Beginning at 10:30, the Pittsburgh Kiwanis Club will present a radio program over KDKA, featuring Miss Mable King, contralto; the Kiwanis quartet and trio.

KDKA-WJAS In Convention Broadcast

KDKA and WJAS are in the coast-to-coast hookups broadcasting the Democratic National Convention in session in Houston.

The convention goes on the air at 1:00 p. m. (daylight saving time). Should there be night sessions they will be broadcast in their entirety. At the close of each day's session, a resume of events of the day will be presented.

HEALTH RESTORED BY NEW MEDICINE

Local Millworker Tells How Ten Herbs Ended Stomach, Liver and Bowel Trouble.

"Ten Herbs has restored my health, making me feel better and stronger in every way," was the statement of Mr. Edward P. Gabler, 65 South Main Street, Pittsburgh, to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this great natural medicine to crowds of men and women. "I do not hesitate to tell my friends and fellow-workers what Ten Herbs has done for me," continued Mr. Gabler, who is a millworker.

MR. EDWARD P. GABLER

"My stomach troubled me for a long time. Gas would form and cause rifting. Many times I had to arise from bed, because my stomach caused such intense suffering, and there was a constant craving for food. I was always constipated, although I tried all kinds of medicines to regulate my bowels. My liver was sluggish, and my tongue was coated nearly all the time. I became very nervous and could not sleep at night.

"I read in the newspapers how persons had been benefited by Ten Herbs, and I started using your medicine. My stomach is now in good condition. I am no longer troubled with gas and do not rift any more. My bowels have been regulated. My liver is in good working order, and the coating has left my tongue. Although I have a good appetite, that constant craving for food has left me. I sleep soundly at night, as I am no longer nervous, and my rest is not broken by having to arise. I gladly recommend Ten Herbs to the public."

Profit by the experience of others. Get Ten Herbs benefit and invigorate stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and give your whole system a thorough cleansing.

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

Thief Gets Her Trousseau on Wedding Day

City detectives today sought trace of an unromantic thief who stole the traveling trousseau of a bride-to-be from her fiance's automobile a few hours before the wedding.

Chartiers Montgomery, Jr., of 2666 Brighton road, left his sedan at Smithfield street and Oliver avenue shortly before 3 p. m. yesterday and hurried into the Mellon National Bank, he told detectives, to obtain travelers' checks for the honeymoon.

When he returned he found missing two bags containing garments of the bride, who until last night was Miss Mary Brautigan, 1112 Kelton avenue, as well as much of his own apparel.

Montgomery rushed to detective headquarters to report the theft, then dashed off to make ready for the wedding last night in the Fourth United Presbyterian Church, North Side.

Acids In Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Sourness, Gas and Pain. How to Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from May's Drug Stores or any druggist some Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful of powder or four tablets in water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk), is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Menu For Sunday Dinner

By PRUDENCE PENNY

Fricasseed Chicken.
Rice. Squash. Peas.
Romain and Orange Salad.
Strawberry Sponge.

HAVE the butcher cut the chicken in small sections for fricasseeing; singe and wash. Saute in butter or butter substitute until golden brown, barely cover with water and simmer until tender. This will take from one hour to three, depending on the age of the bird. If it is none too young, it is a good idea to soak it overnight in vinegar. If well rinsed this will in no way hurt the flavor, but will make the meat a great deal more tender.

Season to taste with salt and pepper; a dash of celery and onion salt will add flavor. Thicken the gravy with a little flour and water mixed to a smooth paste. There should be one and one-half tablespoons of flour used to two cups of liquid.

RICE should be cooked in rapidly boiling salted water, in the proportion of two quarts of water to one cup of rice. Wash well

POST Toasties THE wake-up FOOD

"When do we eat?"—and WHAT?

by Mary Blake

That's what you can count on hearing from the men of the party when you go on a camping trip. There's nothing like life out in the open to put a keen edge on appetite, and give an almost unbelievable appreciation of even the simplest fare.

Surely in the face of such interest and such expectations you won't fall short in your role of camp cook. A little planning in advance, and a little ingenuity in using the perhaps limited camp facilities, and you will find yourself able to concoct the most delectable meals, no matter how deep in the wilds you are.

And when the men come back hungry after a day of fishing to the big camp fire, when the trout and bacon are sizzling in the pan, the johnny-cake turning a golden brown and the coffee sending its delectable aroma into the air—then you'll know how big a part you are playing in making the vacation a glorious success.

Carnation solves the milk problem

Don't forget, if you want to do a real job, to take with you a generous supply of Carnation Milk, so that—no matter how far away you get from civilization—you can have plenty of pure, sweet, rich milk. Not only is it wonderful for "creaming" coffee, but it actually gives better results in cooking than even the best of bottled milk.

Carnation is not as some people think, a sweetened, condensed milk. It is simply pure, high-grade milk from selected herds, of a controlled and uniformly high quality, evaporated to double richness and sterilized for safe-keeping.

Because it has a double portion of cream in it, it is fine for creaming coffee. That is the way many people first come to know about it.

But it is in cooking that you find it most wonderful. Here it gives uniformly successful results, because it is always pure and sweet, always the same in quality. You need less butter and cream in cooking when you use Carnation, because of its double creaminess.

You can buy Carnation anywhere on your trip. It is hermetically sealed; sterilized; safe. Nothing can contaminate it; and no refrigeration is required for it. Once you have known its convenience on a camping trip, you will never be without it at home.

Why not send for the Carnation Cook Book before you go on your trip? It is free. Address Carnation Milk Products Co., 100 Carnation Bldg., Oconomowoc, Wis.

Carnation Coffee

½ cup coffee, ground medium, ½ egg, ½ cup cold water, 3 cups boiling water, ¼ cup cold water. Mix egg and ½ cup cold water and add to coffee in the pot. Add boiling water, boil up once, stir with a spoon and boil up again. Add the ¼ cup cold water to settle coffee. Serve immediately; cream with undiluted Carnation. Serves 5.

WHEN DO WE EAT?

"A hundred miles from nowhere" you'll always have pure, rich, delicious milk—if you have Carnation. Great for creaming coffee. Fine for cooking. And just as fine for everyday use when you get back home.

through several waters first, then add to the water when it is boiling briskly; cook twenty-five to thirty minutes, until tender.

Both peas and squash should be cooked in very little water. Seasoned with salt and butter, and a suspicion of minced onion or garlic added will do no harm.

Romain should be well washed and chilled, the leaves separated and oranges peeled, separated in quarters and sliced. Serve with a French dressing made with lemon juice instead of vinegar.

FOR Strawberry Sponge, stew a cup of strawberries gently and press through a sieve. Soak one tablespoonful of gelatine in a little cold water for five minutes, dissolve in a pint of boiling water. Add half a cup of sugar to the strawberry pulp while hot and add sufficient cold water to make a pint of syrup. Combine with the gelatine. Chill. When it starts to set, stir to prevent strawberry pulp sinking to the bottom. Whip the whites of four eggs until stiff, add to the gelatine and whip until frothy. Chill and serve with whipped cream.

MACKEREL is an oily fish and broils very well. Have it split and cleaned at the shop. I like to have them remove the backbone entirely, though you must be careful not to break the fish in handling if this is done.

Spread the fish lightly with butter and sprinkle with a little salt. Oil the grill, broil on both sides until brown and serve with lemon butter, a teaspoonful of melted butter, and an equal amount of lemon juice beaten together.

WASH the peppers, cut in halves and remove the seeds. Fill with the stuffing, sprinkle with bread crumbs and put a small piece of bacon on top. Place in a baking pan. Pour a cup of stewed tomatoes about the peppers and bake in the oven until the peppers are done, about 50 minutes.

BOIL spaghetti in salted water until tender, about 15 minutes. Make a cream cheese sauce by blending two tablespoonfuls of butter with two tablespoonfuls of flour. Then add a little at a time one and one-half cups of milk. When thick and smooth add one-quarter pound of American cheese rubbed through a grater, salt and pepper to taste and cook until the cheese is melted. Put the cheese into a casserole, cover with the sauce, sprinkle the top with grated cheese and bread crumbs and heat in the oven until crumbs are brown.

A menu of baked beans, cold sliced ham, cold slaw and sweet pickles, hot coffee and ice cream and cake would be easy to get ready and simple to serve. Brown bread is always nice with baked beans, but hot rolls will be equally appreciated and little Parker House rolls from the bakery are always good.

TO prepare your meat for roasting remove all skin and superfluous fat, sprinkle with salt, pepper and flour, place on a trivet in a covered roasting pan, pour a cupful of water around it and roast in a fairly hot oven for about three hours. Pork must be well done to be digestible.

Make your gravy with one tablespoonful of drippings from the meat, blended with one tablespoonful of flour and add one cup of boiling water. Make this gravy in the roasting pan. The water should have about evaporated and any excess of fat can be poured off.

WASH the rice thoroughly in several waters, then cook in rapidly boiling salted water for 25 minutes or until the rise is tender. Strain and serve.

Lay stewed pears in a buttered baking dish, pour juice about them and put a dab of butter on each. Place under the grill until browned and serve.

Pick over Brussels sprouts, remove any wilted leaves and put to soak in cold, salted water for half an hour. Put on in boiling salted water and cook for about 15 minutes. Serve with melted butter.

TWO STOLEN IDOLS

MYSTERY! THRILLS! ADVENTURE! LOVE!!!

by FRANK L. PACKARD

Java Dick Promises Bob His Aid in Finding Won Fu

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The body of Tom Kingsley is picked up by Capt. "Scarface" Sweeney and his mate, Marlow, off Singapore. Tom's brother, Robert, also an old "sea dog," is notified of the death and receives articles found on the corpse. Among these are two small but handsomely carved Ivory Idols. Robert Kingsley has good reason to believe that Hsi Yan, an ancient enemy, has returned after 30 years to seek vengeance. The Idols are stolen and Young Bob starts out to recover them. After many adventures Bob and Verna Lyle are both prisoners at Richardson's plantation. The Malay whom Bob had rescued plans Verna's and Bob's escape. Bob, still bound, is carried to safety by the Malay. Bob plans to leave Verna with friends in Kalawa. Bob finds one Idol and discovers it holds a message in cypher. He starts for Singapore determined to solve the mystery. He visits Java Dick and meets old friends where he finds out many things of unusual interest.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"HIC!"—hello, Java!" he said.

Java Dick thrust out his hand.

"Blimy!" ejaculated the misshapen Oriental, with his incongruous Cockney accent, "Blimy, if it ain't Black Bob!" He grinned broadly. "You're going the wrong way, ain't you?"

Bob Kingsley shook his head.

"I've been to your place"—he pushed his hand unsteadily across his eyes—"and I've drunk a bit too much already."

"That's all right," declared Java Dick heartily. "You come on back, and I'll fix you up for the night where you can sleep it off peaceful-like."

Again Bob Kingsley shook his head.

"No," he said; "and I fancy you wouldn't want me—not tonight. I—hic!—I'll tell you why in a minute." He caught hold of Java Dick's arm confidentially. "I say! You know about Hsi Yan's junk at Kalawa, and my uncle, Tom Kingsley, being murdered, and two little ivory gods being found in his pocket, don't you?"

"Of course, I know," said Java Dick. "It was in the papers."

"Well"—Bob Kingsley's grip tightened on the other's arm—"I don't know why, but those two little idols are at the bottom of the whole business. They were sent to my old man in Patua, and stolen from him the same night he got them. But anyway!"—he was whispering in Java Dick's ear now—"I've got back one of them."

"The hell, you have!" exclaimed Java Dick earnestly.

"Sure, I have!" asserted Bob Kingsley. "I got it right here in my pocket now. And I want some help. You're a good old scout, Java! And you've got 'em all skinned! They're going to pay for that Kalawa business. The idols are at the bottom of it, I tell you. Say, do you know a lousy Chink by the name of Won Fu?"

"I know him," said Java Dick. "He was in my place tonight."

"Well, then, do you know another of the same breed, a fellow with a bent nose called Chen-shu?"

"He was there, too, a couple of hours ago," Java Dick answered, "but he went away again. What about 'em?"

Bob Kingsley steadied himself on his feet with a valiant effort. They would tell Java Dick that he had been egregiously drunk a few minutes ago in the other's place. Therefore he must remain drunk now.

"They're two of the crowd that did my uncle down at Kalawa," he said hoarsely. "And the reason I know is because Chen-shu's got the other idol. What I want to find out is where they hang out, and who—hic!—all the rest of 'em are that are mixed up in it with 'em. See? That's where I'm banking on you, Java. You're the one man can help me out. Say! You'll lend a hand, won't you?"

Java Dick scratched thoughtfully at his head.

"I don't know about this," he said doubtfully. "I can't afford to get caught doing any snitching. I'll tell you what I'll do, though. I've known Chen-shu off and on for four or five years, but I don't know anything about his pals in Singapore, or where any of 'em hang out; but you come along back with me and I'll send out some runners that'll maybe pick up some of the dope you want—and providing you agree to keep your face shut as to where it came from, I'll pass it on to you. Come along!"

"Not on your—hic!—life!" said Bob Kingsley with a sickly smile. "I'm not going back there tonight! I told you that before, and I'll tell you why now. I dropped that idol like a fool on the roulette table with a handful of money that I was going to bet, and Won Fu saw it. I might have been drunk, and maybe I am yet, but I wasn't drunk enough not to see Won Fu beating it for the door, though I don't think he knew that I had seen him in the place at all. He'll be back there after me with the gang at his heels as soon as he can get them together. I'm looking for them all right—but not like that!"

"Hell!" snorted Java Dick contemptuously. "I'd like to see 'em start anything in my place! You come on back."

"Not—hic!—for mine!" said Bob Kingsley doggedly. "D'you want a free-for-all, with the police busting in and raiding you?"

Java Dick scratched thoughtfully at his head again.

"Well, maybe you're right," he agreed; and then, with a puzzled frown: "It's a bit queer you running into me with this stuff about Chen-she. You've asked a lot of questions. I'm going to ask one. D'ye know a man named Mindar Singh?"

Bob Kingsley stared at Java Dick—and then pushed his cap excitedly back on his head.

"Rather!" he said with a startled gulp. "He was my uncle's servant in Kalawa—there the night—hic!—the junk came. What do you know about him?"

Java Dick chuckled.

"I don't know anything about him, or anything about any of the rest of this business, except that Chen-shu seems to be out of luck all round tonight. It hit me between the peepers after you got talking that this here Mindar Singh chap might have something to do with it. All I know is that it was the reason Chen-shu was in my place tonight. I couldn't make out the rights of it, but this Mindar Singh seemed to have run away, or got away from Chen-shu, or something—and, from what he said, God help Mr. Singh if Chen-shu ever gets his claws on him again! Won Fu, from the way I got it, was left to keep a look out for the fellow, and Chen-shu started off to picket all the rest of the joints like mine where he thought there might be a chance of the man showing up."

"My word!" gasped Bob Kingsley eagerly. "I—hic!—I'd give a good deal to see Mindar Singh. The beggar hasn't been heard of since that night at Kalawa. Thought he was dead! I say, Java—his voice was lowered again—"tip me off if you hear anything more about him, eh? And you're going to lend me a hand on that other count, too, aren't you?

Java Dick smiled dubiously.

"Where are you going to be? Where'd I find you?" he demanded.

"I'll be on the Alita—she's at anchor out there in the harbor," Bob Kingsley replied. "Come now, Java—give me a leg up, won't you?"

"I've got my own skin to think of!" Java Dick grunted—and then he grinned amiably. "All right," he agreed. "Chen-shu's no friend of mine, and I'll see what I can find out for you; but"—the smile vanished suddenly in a menacing twist of the lips—"so help me God, Black Bob, if you let me down I'll turn something loose on you that—"

"My dear, I'm ALL-of-a-STAM-and-YAMmer at this point—I mean I ACtually AM, because the situation is comPLETEly out of conTROL and has me BAFfled, no less! I mean ARab COULDn't be RUder, my dear, because he's simply making no EFfort to introDUCE this new MAN to anybody, my dear, and I think it's the most SELFish attitude to have because you'd think the LEAST he could DO was to see that this benny meet some atTRACtive GIRLS, my dear, do you s'pose Arab REALLY lieve he knows a SOUL in TOWN at this point, Gosh, my dear, do you suppose Arab REALLY KNOWS him or is he just SPOOFing? ANYways, I think it's TOO riDIC for him to inSIST on making such a treMENdous MYStery about this bimbo because you'd think he had the IDEA he was STRINGing me aLOND and all, and that I was TOO inTRIGUED when as a matter of FACT, my dear, it's no gooseflesh to ME whether I meet him or not and absolutely the ONly reason I want Arab to introDUCE me is so I can CALL his BLUFF because I ACtually don't believe he KNOWS him, do you know what I mean? Because he gave the most perVERted explaNATion about what happened the other DAY when this odd soul WALKED right BY us without a WORD, my dear. I mean he just said he was 'LIKE THAT,' which ACtually doesn't make SENSE, my dear, but I HONestly think the whole POINT is that it's a darn mean that SOMEbody doesn't sort of SEE that this benny MEETS some PEOPLE because I think he must be having a FOUL time not KNOWING any GIRLS, my dear—I mean I Actually DO!"

Madge Discovers That Junior Possesses His Father's Traits

FOR a bewildered second or two following Junior's query concerning the "flying rock things," I gazed at my small son, wondering what he could mean. Then with a mingling of amusement and irritation I remembered a couplet which Dicky and sometimes Lillian were wont to quote when I had persistently adhered to some decision.

"Come one, come all, this rock shall fly
From its firm base as soon as I."

I never had minded either my husband's or my friend's teasing, but Junior's question, based, as I knew it must be, upon his overbearing of his father's badinage found an unsuspected crevice in my armor and pierced it. But I kept my voice at the same judicial pitch which it had held when decreeing his punishment.

"Yes, this is decidedly a "flying rock thing," I told him. "I mean that you must not go out of the door yard alone for a week. And you know," I added sternly, "what teasing me will mean."

"Sure I know," my small son answered promptly, "more days in every time I tease. But I wasn't teasing. I was only asking a question.

"I know that," I assured him promptly. "And I have answered it. Now run along and get ready for luncheon."

He turned his back and marched out of the room, ludicrous offended dignity in every line of him. I remained where I was standing, for I knew that our little interview was not yet ended. Surely enough in another half minute I heard his feet pounding back along the corridor. Then he dashed into the room and flung himself upon me.

"I'm not mad. I'm sorry!" he exclaimed in a ritual of his own devising, which generally ends a disciplinary session with him. "Do you love me lots, Mother?"

"So many that I can't count them," I returned obediently, and then with a "bear hug" and a kiss, I let him go. But he left with me a queer uneasiness which drove me to the shelter of my own room, where, behind locked doors, I sat down, and imitating my edict to Junior of a half hour before, held an interview with my own soul.

My small son's quoting of his father's comment upon me was like the sudden flashing of an electric lamp into a long unilluminated corner. Was it possible that in this half-humorous, half-annoyed recognition of my husband's part of a certain inflexibility of mine lay the key to some of our unhappiness?

Other thoughts came thronging, anxious troubled comparisons. How very like Dicky his small son was! So many of his father's traits had shown themselves in the little episode just concluded. Junior had been as reckless of definite boundaries as his father was of approved conventions. Both were generous to a fault, impulsive and forgetful of self in serving and protecting something weaker than themselves. Both resented restraint or criticism, but both were royal in impulsive repentance and "making up" differences.

I had failed completely in my relations to my husband. I faced that fact with a ruthless tearing away of self-deceiving veils. I faced another possibility with rising terror. Would I be unable through the coming years to keep intact the wonderful relationship with my small son which was now mine?

If Dicky had come into my room at that minute of panic I think that I should have forgotten the tragedy which lay between us, and have thrown myself into his arms in a wild appeal to begin all over again. A later, saner reflection strengthened by the remembrance of Lillian's warning concerning just such an emotional reaction as I was now experiencing, steadied me and made me realize that I must wait and watch warily for developments before changing my outward attitude toward my husband.

How I Bleach My Skin White

"The camera is a merciless eye," says Miss Genevieve Barr, noted New York model, "and we girls who have to face it have a method of our own for keeping our skins white and flawless.

"We buy no ready-made preparations, but get three ounces of Orchard White at the drug store and add to this the juice of two lemons. This makes several weeks' supply of a very fine skin bleach which softens, refines and whitens the skin without any harm or irritation. And because you use it while it is still fresh, it is twice as effective as any ready-to-use preparation. I find it a dandy bleach for tan and freckles, too. Every girl who takes up posing in New York sooner or later learns this studio secret. The bleach costs only a few cents to make."

AMAZING Beads of Soap

Revolutionary discovery of a new form of soap now replaces chips and flakes in millions of homes today. An exclusive patented* process makes possible these amazing beads of soap. In fairness to yourself we urge you to read the astonishing facts that follow.

Madam... please make this amazing 15-Minute Test

It offers you a wonderful new way to wash dishes... a way that banishes soapy film... saves your hands ... gets dishes sparkling clean with far less work

GIVE us, please, just 15 minutes of your time. And we'll promise to save you hours of drudgery. We'll show you an astonishing new way to wash dishes. A way that's easier... quicker... safer than any you have ever used before.

First bar soap—then chips ... now Super Suds

Years ago women had only bar soap—but that was unsatisfactory. How hard they had to work getting a soapy solution, and how hard it was to rinse away those clinging soap particles.

Next came chips. Many women changed to this form of soap because it could be stirred into a cleansing solution. But clothes and dishes had to be rinsed too much in order to get rid of the undissolved soap.

Now comes Super Suds, and women are changing to it by the thousands in preference to all other forms of soap.

Super Suds works wonders on washday! It gives you the whitest, cleanest clothes you ever saw. And best of all, they're out on the line in much less time... with far less work.

Super Suds is not a chip ... not a powder ... but a remarkable new form of soap in tiny hollow beads, so thin that they burst into suds the instant they touch water.

Four times as thin as chips, Super Suds is the thinnest soap made.

Why Super Suds is better

In this new soap women have discovered two distinct advantages.

Biggest box on the market for a dime! And it offers you the quickest, hardest-working suds you ever saw... for clothes and dishes. Our advice is... phone your grocer for a box right away.

First, Super Suds is so thin it dissolves instantly ..saves time and trouble.

Second, Super Suds dissolves completely... no undissolved soap to leave spots on clothes or film on dishes. Women like Super Suds because it does the work faster and better than any other form of soap.

Super Suds works wonders on washday, too! You never saw a soap that gets clothes clean so quickly and easily. The rich soapy solution soaks away all grease and grime.

An Octagon Soap Product. Every box of Super Suds carries an Octagon coupon. Save them for valuable premiums.

A PATENTED PROCESS. Super Suds is made by a process covered by exclusive patents. (Products, process, and apparatus covered by U. S. Letters Patent Nos. 1,051,441; 1,090,740; 1,600,503; 1,634,640 and Reissue No. 16,749.)*

BEST IN PITTSBURGH — FRIDAY, JUNE 29, 192[illegible] — TWENTY-FIVE

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Pitt and Carnegie Agreement to Share Panther Bowl Was Reached in Spring. Long Work on Plans—Hill's Fifth Defeat In Last Six Games—Ruth's Chances for New Record Improve.

ANNOUNCEMENT that both Pitt and Carnegie Tech will use the Panther Stadium for their big football games for at least 15 years after this season on an alternate Saturday arrangement, did not come as a surprise, inasmuch as agreement really was reached early in the spring and the officials have been busy ever since working out the plans.

W. Don Harrison

That the joint use of the big stadium by the Panthers and the Plaid was being planned for 1929 (Carnegie Tech's contract at Forbes Field has one more year to run) has been known since early in the year.

One of Carnegie Tech's leading officials admitted three months ago that such an arrangement would be worked out. A similar admission was made on the Pitt side at that time.

C. W. Overend, graduate manager of athletics; J. F. Laboon, L. H. Lee and Frank Lanahan, of Carnegie Tech, and W. D. Harrison, athletic director, C. L. Wooldridge and Dean H. E. Friesell, of Pitt, were the committees which worked together in perfecting the new gridiron arrangement.

IT was only a question of dovetailing schedules. It's all set now and you will see all of the big games on the local schedule for 1929 played in the huge bowl on the hill whether Pitt or Carnegie Tech is meeting the visiting team each week.

An effort will be made to have the schedule dovetail, so that the Panthers and the Plaid will each get four Saturday dates apart from the date of their own game, with Thanksgiving Day going to Pitt for the annual meeting with Penn State.

Several schedule changes may be anticipated to make the new system easily possible. Some of the big fixtures here may have to be changed around, and one or two of Pitt's old opponents may have to be dropped.

DIRECTOR HARRISON of Pitt made it known while discussing schedules, etc., yesterday, that he had just closed definitely with Notre Dame on a date for the game to be played between the Panthers and Knute Rockne's warriors in 1929.

Clarence Overend

The date chosen is Saturday, October 26, and the game will take place in South Bend, Ind. In the following year, 1930, Notre Dame will come here to play Pitt, completing their two-year home-and-home agreement.

Though Pitt will have to go to South Bend to meet the Rockne stars next year, Notre Dame will be seen in Pittsburgh nevertheless, being booked to play Carnegie Tech at Forbes Field in one of the features of the 1929 schedul.

WITH exceptional displays of sportsmanship were being talked about in connection with American track meets and the Olympic games in Amesterdam this year, Charley Paddock related this one:

"The greatest sporting gesture I ever heard of occurred after the Olympic games in Sweden, in 1912. Jim Thorpe won the great Viking ship and bronze statue of the King of Sweden as decathlon champion, only later to be professionalized for an act committed before the games. The trophies were boxed and shipped back to the Swedish Olympic Committee, who awarded them to Weislander, thus automatically made champion by having stood second to Thorpe. Weislander refused to accept.

Charley Paddock

"He said: 'Jim Thorpe won them as all-round champion of the world. Because he has been disqualified does not make me all-round champion of the world. I am only second to the all-round champion, no matter what the rules are'."

THOUGH home runs into the right-field stand at SportsmansPark in St. Louis are by no means of infrequent occurance, it is clear that there is something wrong with the pitching of Carmen Hill when he is nicked for two of these at a time when they mean the loss of a game in which the Bucs are leading.

Normal pitching by Hill would have brought victory to Pittsburgh yesterday after Glenn Wright broke the tie with a homer, but normal pitching seems to be something that none of the Pirate regulars can deliver this year with the exception of Burleigh Grimes.

HILL has now lost three games in a row and has been beaten in five of his last six encounters. If anyone had predicted in April that when June 28

EMANUEL SUFFERS FROM RING-FRIGHT

NEW YORK, June 29.—(AP.)—To the accompaniment of the boos of 6,000 of the faithful, Tommy Loughran, far from his best speed and condition, outpointed Armand Emanuel, young battler from San Francisco, in a tame scrap last night that left the 175-pound title in the locker of the New York State Athletic Commission for safekeeping.

Emanuel was forced to drink three glasses of water before weighing in in order to scale 175¼ pounds and make the go a non-title affair. Loughran weighed 174¾.

Although he missed scores of punches, was slow afoot and generally inclined to take no chances, Loughran outpointed the member of the California bar rather easily. The Associated Press score sheet gave Loughran six rounds, with three for Emanuel and one even.

Emanuel seemed a bit ring-struck in the early rounds and allowed Loughran to direct the battle about as he wanted it. In the second round Tommy cornered the Pacific Coast boy and smashed a left and right to the chin that nearly ended the fight then and there.

The crowd rallied to the cause of the game Westerner as he fought Loughran madly. The mob "rode" Loughran steadily thereafter as the champion, unable to gain another decisive advantage, dropped a punch low now and then and was not above using elbows and back hands to maintain his winning margin.

TERRY LINGO

NEW SENSATION

The name of Terry Lingo is on the tongues of the boxing fans of the Pittsburgh district these days. He has been a sensation since he came here from Cincinnati three months ago and gives promise of developing into a stellar local card during the fall and winter season.

PACKS KNOCKOUT WALLOP

Lingo has had five fights since coming to Pittsburgh as an employe of a soap manufacturing concern which was staging a selling campaign and he has done so well that he has decided to make his home here. He is under the management of Charley Luck, of the North Side, who has piloted him in all of his local battles. His real name is Carl Lingo and he took the Terry from the fighting name of a friend, Terry Turner, in Cincinnati. Lingo is 22 years old, of German-Irish descent, has been boxing a little more than two years and has engaged in approximately 60 bouts, of which he has won about one-third by knockouts. He has not been beaten since he reached main bout estate. He is a good boxer, a whirlwind fighter and a terrific puncher. Last Monday night he knocked out Teddy Welch, of McKeesport, in the first round at Washington, Pa., where he previously had knocked out Neal Brogan in three rounds and handed Steve O'Malley and Jack Bany beatings in 10-round battles. He also has defeated O'Malley in a return bout at Johnstown and knocked out Hal Murray, of Harrisburg, in four rounds at Altoona since coming to these parts. He can make 135 pounds without difficulty and so is comfortably inside the lightweight limit.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK
SPORTS EDITOR

WELL, well, guess who's in town! None other than an old friend whom you really should know if you are interested in athletics of any sort, or, more correctly, athletics of all sorts, one Robert M. (Bob, otherwise Zim) Zimmerman, whose career as a sportsman has few parallels, and who, at the age of 41, still retains his zest for the fight.

Bob Zimmerman.

Zim has been in town for a couple of months, but has just come out from behind his disguise as an ordinary citizen and will be leaving us again early next week for a sojourn in New York, but tells me he is planning to return here in the fall and make his home in Pittsburgh if he is successful in making a connection here that has attracted him.

THEY may talk of their Jim Thorpes and other all-round athletes, but I'll back Zimmerman's record and competitive spirit

Geneva Gridder Out

By CARL W. SHATTO

DAVID CULLEN, captain-elect of the Geneva College football team and regarded as one of the best guards in the Tri-State Conference, was withdrawn as an eligible player by A. C. Edgecombe, athletic director at Geneva, at a special meeting of the Tri-State Conference at the Fort Pitt Hotel yesterday afternoon.

At the last regular meeting of the Conference, in April, Cullen's eligibility to another year of varsity football competition was questioned on the grounds that he already has played four years of varsity football, and at the invitation of Edgecombe, John D. Holahan, graduate manager of athletics at Duquesne, lodged a formal protest against the Geneva star in order that the issue might be brought to a head and a definite decision reached.

Yesterday's meeting was called to consider the protest and to weigh such evidence and data pertaining to Cullen's status as had been collected since that time.

The information submitted to the Conference chiefs included commun-

Sun-Tele Tourney Looms Big

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

There is no question of doubt but that the first annual Sun-Telegraph West Penn amateur junior golf tournament for the William Randolph Hearst Trophy, which is to be held on the Schenley Park Municipal links, Thursday, July 12, will be one of the biggest golf events ever staged in Western Pennsylvania. Entries are coming in so fast for both the junior and sub-junior divisions that they keep the Golf Tournament Editor running around in circles trying to keep up with them.

And so if you have already sent in your entry, and have not seen your name in the paper, you will know that it is due to the fact that the tournament editor is flooded with entry blanks.

In the event that there may be a few boys who are not yet aware of what the Sun-Telegraph's tournament is all about, let us go over it all briefly. All amateur golfers 18 years of age and under not attending an institution of education above

YOUNG SAYLOR BEATS SCELLO IN DUQUESNE

By JAMES MILLER.

YOUNG SAYLOR, clever Charleroi welterweight, added Phil Scello's scalp to his long list of local victims when he gallantly boxed his way to an impressive victory over the McKeesport lad in the 10-round feature bout of Jules Beck's opening outdoor boxing show at the Duquesne ball park last night.

Only twice in the brawl did Scello show any sign of fighting such as, if continued, would have turned the decision in his favor, these spurts coming in the second and third rounds when Phil broke through Saylor's guard, shot several hard lefts and rights to the Charleroian's anatomy and forced him to break ground. These were the only rounds that Scello won. Saylor, with the confidence of a king, tore into Scello from then on and won the fight with apparent ease.

In the ninth round, with both fighting hard, Scello cut loose a terrific right that landed on Saylor's side. Had the punch been a few inches lower it might have sprained his knee. Phil, after checking up on his low blow, was blustering over with apologies which Saylor acknowledged with a nod of his head. Saylor tipped the beam at 147¾ pounds and Scello at 148.

In a hectic semi-final, Jack Katkish, of Lawrenceville, who is doing a comeback, outpunched and outgamed Johnny Carey, reputed puncher of Erie, in six rounds only to have the judges disagree and the referee, Joe Keally, call the bout a draw. Katkish after being absent from the ring since the beating he received at the hands of Jack Zivic at Motor Square Garden last winter came back full of vim and plenty of punch to give Carey what many at the ringside thought a setback.

In the third round Katty forced Carey to the ropes under a deluge of punches and in the exchange Carey's left optic was badly cut

CORSAIR HURLERS WORRY BUSH

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.
(Sun.-Tele Staff Correspondent.)

ST. LOUIS, June 29.—As was feared before the Pirate skiff docked at this Mississippi port, the Pittsburgh sharpshooters continued their disappointing stride in the opener of the important series with the Cardinals yesterday. The result was a defeat for the Buccos.

The Freebooters are not downcast, but the setback of yesterday was hard to take inasmuch as the invaders were leading the pace-setters 3 to 2, as late as the seventh inning. Then the bugaboo that has been with the club since March arose to grab the triumph right out of the Pirates' grasp. The score was 4 to 3.

HOMERS SPILL LEAD

Carmen Hill carried a one-run advantage into the stretch inning, but Hill had not pitched many balls in this frame before two homers sputtered from the bats of Frank Frisch and Chick Hafey. From the stands it seemed as if Hill was throwing everything he had on every pitch, but it was alo evident that he did not have anything much on the ball for the home batters were bringing up their punches from the floor. John Miljus stepped in just one batter too late. The Penn avenue grad stemmed the advance, but the one run was sufficient to decide the fight in view of the fall down of the Pirate batters in the ninth when they had the tying and winning tallies on the sacks with only one out.

GLENN WRIGHT RETURNS

Glenn (Buckshot) Wright, back at his post after a short layoff due to sickness, hammered the rocket into the rightfield stands in the fifth to break a deadlock and put the Pirates in front, 3 to 2. Glenn's fine work, however, was undone by the faulty pitching in the seventh when Frisch and Hafey clicked a pair of round-trippers to make the score 4 to 3, which count prevailed at the close.

With one out in the ninth, Barnhart hammered a single to left and Pete Scott, batting for Grantham, waited for a very important pass. Pie Traynor fell down in the emergency, his effort being a foul fly to Jimmy Wilson. The Redbird directors held a strategy meeting on Glenn Wright, who gave them quite a battle before he hit a grounder to Holm that ended in the final putout of the struggle.

Frisch was the first man to face Hill in the seventh. The Fordham flash was batting less than .300 when the Buccos landed in town, but he seems to thrive on Pittsburgh opposition. On two previous occasions he rammed a double and a single through the Pirate defenses, and in the noisy seventh he pulled a high one into the right-field stands.

HILL APPEARS WEARY

Hill appeared weary as he worked on Hafey. Miljus loosened up in the bullpen as Hafey hammered a long foul into the left-field seats. A minute later he had the range on the same section, excepting that he propelled the ball into fair territory for the all-important punch.

Wee Willie Sherdel gave the Pirates a trimming. The left-hander was spotted two runs at the outset when Roettger doubled with the bases loaded. Sparky Adams, Paul Waner and Barnhart hooked up three smashing hits in the fourth to force a tie and the Bushwhackers took the lead when Wright walloped the ball into the stands.

CASEY, BAKER IN AUTO RACE

Two prime favorites in eastern automobile racing circles, Joe Baker and Jack Casey, both of Pittsburgh, will be among the long list of speed celebrities who will make an attempt to qualify for the second of a series of races to be presented next Wednesday afternoon (Independence Day) at the famous Bridgeville Speedway, one of the best half-mile board tracks in the country.

TAYLOR MEETS ZORILLA

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—(AP.)—Bud Taylor, the Terre Haute terror, and Santiago Zorilla, from the jungles of Panama, meet in a 10-round bout here tonight, opening a new auditorium.

BOUT FOR JOHNSON

Garfield Johnson, Negro lightheavyweight of Lawrenceville, and formerly of Seattle, who recently defeated Tut Jackson at Washington Court House, O., has been matched for another bout in that town. He will meet Harry Williams in the main event of an open-air show next Wednesday, July 4.

SCORES ACE, DROPS DEAD

HORNELL, N. Y., June 29.—(AP.)—Paul T. Bloodsworth, 28, of this city, made a hole in one on the golf course at Edgemont, N. J., yesterday and dropped dead from the excitement, his parents were informed in a telegram.

Real Fights Are Promised

By TOM BIRKS.

WITH the stage all set for a fight for its existence, the United States Soccer Football Association will go into its annual convention, beginning today at the Hotel Schroeder, Milwaukee, with delegates from as far east as Maine and as far west as California, gathered on the shores of Lake Michigan to play a part in one of the bitterest factional fights that ever marked a three-day session of soccers' governing body.

It i an open act that the delegates from the American League are making the trip West in an effort to rake the big professional loop down east the king pin of American soccer And it i- also an open fact that men all over the states that have devoted a life time to the boosting of the kicking code are filled to the brim with the "plac- the sun" attitude of the sponsors of the professional loop.

Then another movement to abolish the American Challenge cup competition is sure to meet with a bitter fight that will last throughout. The sponsors of the cup abolishment probably feel that this will curb a militant spirit, and make the association financially independant during the seasons' grind.

But the real fight will be based on the selection of the officials for the coming year. A tirade was launched against the present incumbents the moment the American Olympic team was announced. The West has contributed heavily to the Olympic fund, and the upshot was the resigning of William Cummings of Chicago from the chairmanship of the Olympic committee. These things have rankled in the minds of the Westerners, and they were not helped when America's team made such a poor showing in the games abroad. Some plain facts are going to be told, and in this bat Western Pennsylvania will take it part. Then there is a chance that the long-winded Appeals Committee will be hauled on the carpets by the local delegates to explain the delay in the famous Kerr and Celtic cases.

The convention will be finished early Monday morning and then the United States Referees Union will go into session at the Hotel Brevoort, Chicago, at2 p. m., in the afternoon . That evening a banquet w'l be given the visitors by the Chicago association.

M'CARTHY ADVANCES

RYE, N. Y., June 29.—(AP.)—Playing peerless golf despite a drenching rain and a puddle-strewn course, Maurice McCarthy, Jr., of Georgetown, defeated John Ames, Princeton captain, by 5 up and 3 to play in the third round of the national intercollegiate golf championship at the Apawamis Club today.

and discolored. Carey weighed 146½ and Katkish 147¾.

Ray Crawford, Duquesne heavyweight, was knocked out by Chuck Semach, of Clairton, in the third round of the scheduled six-round second bout. He was floored three times before being counted out. Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, stopped Billy Nixon, Scranton Negro, in the first round, the referee halting the battle when Nixon covered up and refused to fight after being knocked down. Joe Keally refereed all of the bouts and the judges were Jim McLaughlin and Jock Simco.

NAVY-U. S. C. GRID GAME ON CHRISTMAS PLANNED

LOS ANGELES, June 29.—(AP.)—A Christmas Day gridiron game between the United States Naval Academy and the University of Southern California at the Coliseum here this year, appeared in the offing today.

It was learned that Gwinn Wilson, graduate manager of Southern California, and Warren Bovard, comptroller of the institution, now are in Washington negotiating with the Navy for a two-year agreement. The Naval team would come West this fall and Southern California would go East under the agreement sought by U. S. C.

now public experience adds the proof of the remarkable qualities of the new extra-powered Atlantic Gasoline

A MONTH ago you read the first announcement of an unusual new-type, extra-powered, "knockless" Atlantic Gasoline.

It was the justly enthusiastic word of the refiners. For innumerable tests, in every type of motor and under all sorts of driving conditions, indicated that a real discovery, a great forward step, had been made in motor fuel refining.

Now the vast motoring public speaks from its own experience. "A splendid motor fuel!" is the widespread opinion.

Not only is Atlantic extra-powered. Not only is it free from fuel "knocks." But with it you get ease in starting, agile pick-up, complete-burning, carbonless combustion . . . all-round performance such as you have never before obtained from any gasoline without extra cost.

HENNESSY AND HELEN WILLS ADVANCE AT WIMBLEDON

★ SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS ★

OUTDOOR SPORTS by Tad

Tilden Cops In Doubles

WIMBLEDON, England, June 29.—(AP.)—Smiling John Hennessy, hard-hitting young American Davis cup star, reached the quarter finals of the Wimbledon tennis tournament today by vanquishing the German, F. Frenz, 6-4, 6-1, 6-3, on the center court before a big gallery.

Frenz served fiercely and raked Hennessey's court with zipping forehanders, but the American had a much wider range of stroke and employed sounder tactics.

Miss Helen Wills, of California, continued her sweep toward a second successive championship by conquering Miss E. H. Harvey, of the British Wightman Cup forces, in straight sets, 6-2, 6-3.

The American tennis ace met her first real test of the tournament in decisive fashion. Miss Wills lost more games to Miss Harvey than to her two previous opponents combined, but she was always in command and clearly outclassed the plucky English girl.

Teaming with Francis T. Hunter, Tilden advanced in the doubles play by defeating Scroope and O'Callaghan, of Ireland, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

MISS ANDERSON LOSES

Miss Penelope Anderson, of Richmond, Va., the seventh ranking American women player, met unexpected defeat in a three-set match, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Miss Anderson fell before Miss Naomi Trentham, sturdy young London tournament player, after getting away to an excellent start. The American had her baseline game in splendid working order at first, but her control lapsed under Miss Trentham's forceful driving.

An adverse decision by the umpire in the third and final set with the games 2-2, seemed to upset Miss Anderson.

Henry Cochet, of France, defending champion, advanced easily by trouncing the Argentine ace, Ronald Boyd, 6-4, 6-1, 6-3.

PATTERSON BEATEN

The veteran Australian, Gerald Patterson, holder of the singles championship 10 years ago, was eliminated by Jacques Brugnon, of France, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4, 6-2.

Miss Elizabeth Ryan, veteran Californian, gained an easy victory over the Australian woman's champion, Miss E. Boyd, 6-0, 6-2.

Senorita de Alvarez, of Spain, last year's runner-up, had a lively tussle before she eliminted the English star, Evelyn Colyer, 6-4, 6-4.

King Alfonso of Spain arrived at the stadium just in time to save Senorita de Alvarez from a possible setback. The little Spanish girl was trailing Miss Colyer, 3-4, in the second set and playing poorly, but braced as his majesty came into the royal box and took three straight games to win the set and match.

It's Here! LIFEBUOY Shaving Cream

Its healing double-dense lather ends *tender*face

NO MORE painful skin-irritation after shaving. No more burning and smarting.

Lifebuoy Shaving Cream—with its wonderful lubricating lather—ends tenderface for all time.

Most shaving irritation is caused by the rough scraping of razor over the skin. The greater the lubrication, the less friction there is. It is only by complete lubrication that you can end this friction.

Lifebuoy Shaving Cream lather has not only a double-dense consistency, and double capacity for holding water—but it possesses unusual penetrative powers. It crowds right down into the pores, hugging the face so closely that a thoroughly lubricated shaving surface is formed.

No unprotected spots as with ordinary loose, airy lather. As you shave, your razor scarcely seems to touch you. Yet every trace of hair is gone.

Furthermore, Lifebuoy Shaving Cream contains the same protective ingredients as Lifebuoy Health Soap. Keeps skin clear, smooth, healthy—and helps protect against infection. Truly a shaving cream and face lotion in one.

Get the big red tube today. Or to try Lifebuoy Shaving Cream FREE, mail coupon for 12 days of perfect shaving.

STARS ENTERED IN STATE OPEN

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

Tom Armour To Play Here

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

A NUMBER of nationally-known golf stars will make their one and only appearance in Western Pennsylvania on Monday and Tuesday of next week during the Pennsylvania state open championship.

Lighthorse Harry Cooper, of Buffalo, runner-up to the National open titlist in 1927; Tommy Armour, of Washington, only dethroned from his title perch last week, Joe Kirkwood, and Emmet French, along with a whole flock of lesser stars from parts throughout the country who participated in the big event of the year at Olympia Fields, have sent their entries in to Greer McIlvain, who is handling the affair from this end.

The outlook for the state open championship is a bright one. The Oakmont layout is said to be in splendid condition. A record entry is expected when the list is completed.

DOG SHOW TOMORROW

Close to 400 dogs in 700 classes are entered in the annual show of the Sewickley Kennel Club, scheduled for all day tomorrow, in the Allegheny Country Club horse show ring. To provide against bad weather, all the dogs will be under canvas. The show is under the auspices of the women's auxiliary of the Allegheny General Hospital and proceeds will be used to promote the social service work at the hospital.

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

had gone by, the combined pitching efforts of Kremer, Miljus, Hill and Meadows would have brought to the Bucs only 14 victories against 20 defeats, he would have been laughed out of school. Yet that's all they have delivered to date and if we didn't have Grimes we probably would have fallen out of the league.

BABE RUTH'S chance of surpassing his world's record of 60 home runs in a season, looms up more promisingly than ever today, following his success in ringing up his twenty-ninth and thirtieth four basers yesterday in Philadelphia.

With 30 to his credit Ruth has poled exactly half of his 1927 total of 60, and as he made them in 62 games he has 92 games remaining in which to sock the 31 more needed for a new record.

IT looked for a time early yesterday afternoon as if the Pirates' game in St. Louis would be prevented by rain. This would have necessitated a double-header, and there is already one bargain bill slated for next Sunday.

There was no excuse for either the near-postponement yesterday or the double-header on the Cards program for next Sunday, as Wednesday was an open date for both clubs, and the game held over from the first series of the season could have been played on that day, when the weather was ideal.

Branch Rickey

THE Pittsburgh club asked that instead of booking a double header next Sunday the team be allowed to play off the postponed game on Wednesday, but the St. Louis management declined, on the advice of Branch Rickey, probably, saying that the Cards had an exhibition game scheduled for Wednesday in Bloomington, Ill. The visiting club has no say in the matter.

What has become of the old regulation in the National League prohibiting a double-header when an open date was available for a postponed game?

GEORGE PIPGRAS of the Yanks, who was the first pitcher to win 10 games, is in a fair way toward being the first to win 15, as he registered his fourteenth win yesterday, against only two games lost.

Sammy Gray of the Browns hung up his twelfth win yesterday, tying with Larry Benton for second place in games won. Burleigh Grimes is right at their heels with 11.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

against that of the great Indian or anybody else in the running for the honors, and feel certain the reade. of these lines will, also, when he gets through perusing his record.

The last time Zim was around here was some seven or eight years ago, when he stayed at the P. A. A. for about six months and startled the natives with his sundry abilities. He played handball during that visit with J. Rogers Flannery and other stars and also engaged in other sporting pastimes.

TALL, of athletic build, Zimmerman is the ideal type for competition. He stands 5 feet 11 inches in his socks and is as straight as the proverbial Indian and as powerful as a Hercules of half his years. One glance at his frame is sufficient to satisfy even the casual observer that he was gifted from birth with the qualities that go to make for leadership in the sterner roles of life.

Away back in 1903 he was beginning his starring career as an amateur, and now, 25 years later, he still is performing remarkable, if not amazing, feats in the sporting world, feats of endurance and feats of courage and daring.

KNOWING something of the background of this man Zimmerman, I asked him to go into detail about his career, feeling that his life story would be worth spreading out before the world in printer's ink, and here is the result. A Canadian by birth, in 1903 and 1904 he was swimming for the Chicago Y. M. C. A., and in 1905 he was competing as a swimmer for the Illinois A. C. Then he returned to Canada and from 1906 to 1914, inclusive, he was a member of the Montreal Swimming Club and cracking records of all descriptions. In all, over that period, he was the winner of 33 Canadian championships.

In 1908 and again in 1912, he was a member of the Canadian Olympic swimming squad and he won fourth place in the fancy diving event in the Stockholm games in the latter year.

He was the winner of the Canadian national all-round championship in 1910, the competition consisting of nine track and field events, three swimming events and three skating events.

THE year 1911 saw him on championship teams in basketball, baseball, bowling, water polo, hockey, war canoe paddling and football. He was a star pitcher and was slated for a trial with the Boston Red Sox when an injury to his arm forced him to forego that opportunity. Along about this time he set a record that still stands for a medley contest consisting of a quarter-mile walk, quarter-mile run, quarter-mile bicycle race, quarter-mile rowing test, quarter-mile paddle and quarter-mile swim.

AS a canoeist, he made three noteworthy trips. In 1909, he shot all of the rapids in the St. Lawrence river from Kingston to Montreal, the only time this feat has been accomplished. In 1924, he paddled from Montreal to Chicago, 1700 miles, leaving Montreal in October, paddling 450 miles upstream through the Back, Ottawa and Mattawa rivers, portaging 30 miles to Lake Nipissing, crossing 40 miles of open water, down French river, shooting 11 rapids, into Georgian Bay, across Lake Huron, through the Straits and down Lake Michigan, reaching Chicago on Christmas day. He struck ice and snow on October 20, tipped over in Lake Michigan, December 21, almost freezing to death from exposure, and lived throughout the voyage on fish and game and $3 worth of bacon and beans.

In 1924, he paddled from New York City to Louisville, Ky., going up the Hudson to Albany, through the Erie Canal, shipping his canoe 40 miles into the Allegheny River, passing through Pittsburgh in June, and continuing down the Ohio River to Louisville, and completing the trip of 1,650 miles in 29 days. He averaged 14 hours of travel a day, stroking alternately single and double paddle.

THE professional career of this ace of sports is as interesting as his amateur record. He started in by acting as swimming coach at the Chicago Athletic Club and while there developed the famous Smith twins, Ruth and Eleanor, who broke world records and became National A. A. U. swimming champions. Subsequently he was athletic director at the Milwaukee Athletic Club and the Louisville Elks A. C. Among his other proteges were Arthur Hodgson, winner of two world championships at Stockholm; Arthur Thomsen of Milwaukee, National junior mile champion and Sam Shields of Louisville, National junior distance champion. As recently as last year, Zimmerman won the 20-mile swim at Miami, Fla., in 7 hours, 22 minutes, aided part of the way by the tide.

HIS athletic feats and coaching successes are not the only brilliant performances in the career of this ever-young athlete. During the last few years he has done considerable moving picture acting. He has doubled for several stars in exacting roles and starred in the making of underwater films, his parts calling for deep-sea diving and below surface scene dressing. He is proud of a watch presented him by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer concern for his heroism in swimming through the Florida hurricane of 1926 to a barge to loosen anchor lines and save a fortune in property and six lives. He was so badly battered by the turbulent water that he was laid up for almost three months with smashed knees, ribs and elbows.

Just now, Zimmerman's interests are centered in physical training and the invention of apparatus for the promotion of athletics for the young and old, and it goes without saying that his personal experiences have well fitted him for these tasks. I trust he will make the connection he is angling for here, so that he will return in the fall and be in a position to give the folks of this man's town the benefit of his years of endeavor, for I regard him as a remarkable figure and a personable character who can do much good in these parts.

Three Girls Looking for Work; a Word to Employers.

By B. C. FORBES

THEY were trudging along the sidewalk looking for "help wanted" signs on the many factory and sweatshop buildings. They were three young women of the poorer class. Their clothes, shoes, stockings, were of the poorest, yet you could see that they had made a brave effort to make themselves as clean and attractive as possible.

Spotting one sign, they eagerly hurried up to read it. Alas, the work offered was not in their line. They looked at one another pathetically; then resumed what had apparently become a discouraging search.

THIS incident, witnessed rather early in the morning on my way to work, has somewhat saddened me. It has set me thinking. It has plunged me back to two different stages in my own life when I walked pavements and sought interviews in for-a-time hopeless hunt for a job.

It came to me with a shock, and made me feel not a little ashamed, that during the years I have enjoyed a comfortable job I have given so little thought to the pitiable plight of those out of work. Yet, am I any different in this respect from most people who have fallen into positions enabling them to lead a pleasant life?

But, on reflection, have not those of us who are getting a generous share of life's comforts and luxuries a very definite responsibility towards those who are out in the cold?

IS it not the essence of selfishness and callousness for those of us receiving a fat share of the kitty to give never a thought to our unhappy brothers and sisters who do not know where food or shelter or clothing—or work—are to come from?

This whole problem of unemployment unquestionably is receiving infinitely less attention from the statesmen, the capitalists, the financiers, the employers, the executives of the United States, than it deserves. Months ago the writer urged that the administration should get together the ablest brains in this commonwealth—sounds rather a misnomer, doesn't it?—And charge them with the responsibility of seeking the best feasible solution.

Apparently, however, it was considered politic not to focus attention on the widespread unemployment then prevalent. It would not have been a desirable advertisement for "Republican prosperity" on the eve of a presidential campaign. "The less said the better," was the attitude taken.

BUT shutting one's eyes to a cancer does not cure it. If a "hush-hush" policy would abolish all avoidable unemployment, then every thinking citizen would favor it. But the very fact that their plight has been so largely ignored has made many of those thrown idle feel doubly bitter.

If it be not considered politic to launch the machinery necessary to study and handle the unemployment problem while a political campaign is under way, it is earnestly to be hoped that those having an influential hand in the destinnes of the nation will realize the imperative need for action once vote-seeking is over.

IT HAS been emphasized in this column before now that the recent and present unemployment is of an unusual species. It developed and has continued, not under a period of acknowledged business depression, but during a period usually characterized as prosperous. There are now going on vast economic readjustments different from any known by former generations. How far are these economic readjustments responsible for the dislocation of employment?

If the majority of ordinary folks should reach the conclusion that all these monster mergers, all these expansions in merchandising "chains," all these installations of labor-saving machines are working out excellently for the rich but are causing only worse employment among workers, then we may suffer far more serious trouble than ever was caused by a free silver Bryan or a trust-busting Roosevelt.

IT'S time more seriously the plight of those evicted from bread-winning by the economic changes being wrought by those wielding power.

STOCKS CURBED BY 8 PER CENT MONEY

NEW YORK, June 29. — (AP.) — Eight per cent call money, making its first appearance in Wall street today since June 2, 1921, checked a promising upward movement in prices on the New York Stock Exchange today. Early gains of 1 to 5 points in the standard industrials and 6 to 12 points in a number of specialties were quickly cut down in the selling movement which followed the higher rate.

Fixing of the renewal rate of call loans at 7½ per cent provided a temporary check, but offerings were quickly absorbed and the market headed higher. Banks called $30,000,000 in loans, and the rate was marked up to 8 per cent about 1:15 p. m. The drop of $110,000,000 in brokers' loans last week was the basis for the early bullish demonstration.

Outside of an advance in Corning crude prices and the announcement that there had been an increase of nearly 900 in the stockholders of the United States Steel Corporation during the second quarter, there was little in the day's business news to influence the price movement. Weekly mercantile reviews continued to report irregularity in business, with the weather an important factor in many leading lines.

In the early upswing, Dupont soared 12¼ points to 382¼ as against the week's low of 348, Radio jumped 10¼ to 189 as against the week's low of 168⅝, and Wright Aeronautical advanced 8 points to 147½, or 17½ points above the week's low. Extreme gains of 5 to 7 points were recorded by Curtiss Aeroplane, Detroit Edison, Savage Arms, American Republic, Indian Refining preferred and Texas Pacific, the last two reaching new high ground for the year. Atlantic Refining also attained a new 1928 peak.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, June 29.—Owing largely to cessation of rains in the harvest region wheat values here turned downward today in the early dealings. Kansas dispatches said that with continued dry warm weather binders would be in the fields by the last of the week. Opening 4c off to ⅛c up, wheat later underwent a material setback all around. Corn, oats and provisions developed firmness, with corn starting at ⅛c to ¼c advance, and later scoring additional gains.

Houses that yesterday were conspicuous on the buying side of the wheat market became leaders on the selling today. Reports of better weather for the harvest furnished the chief incentive to bears, but considerable notice was also taken of favorable crop advices from Canada and from the American Northwest as well. Some Canadian districts reported that wheat is already in the short blade stage.

Receipts or offerings in the corn market, July delivery in particular, led to decidedly higher prices at times. Reports here were small, and rains over the corn belt tended to hinder cultivation.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

WOMEN SEE HOPE IN VOTE MACHINE

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY.

Women are taking enthusiastically to the voting machine. Yes indeed! Because:

O, won't it make some of the politicians squirm to have to sit back and see the total number of votes registered at the end of the day—with not a chance to tamper.

Having operated a voting machine and explained its glories in the Jenkins Arcade, Pennsylvania Station and the East End Savings and Trust Company the writer has listened to women with their fighting blood up. She just stands by and the first man who comes along and speaks a word against the little green machine hears something like this:

"Well, if they vote on these machines this fall you just see if every one of us don't go to the polls and fight for their adoption!"

Quite the majority of those who stop to cast their vote in The Sun-Telegraph presidential straw vote are women.

Young women seem to be more keen to vote than the older ones. Yesterday a nicely dressed woman stopped, shook her head and sighed. There was a crowd of flappers pushing forward to vote. She regretted:

"My, isn't it terrible to see those young folks thinking they have as good judgment as their fathers and brothers. The men of the families have lost their hold. Women don't trust them."

And a flapper spoke up pertly:

"We women will clean this political mess yet!"

COUNTY PAYS $20 A DAY TO VOTE COUNT LAWYER

County Commissioners authorized the County Controller to pay Attorney Ward Bonsall $20 a day for services rendered during the recent recount of votes cast at fall election of last year. Judge John A. Evans, Common Pleas Court, recommended that Attorney Bonsall be paid that amount. When the work started, Commissioners agreed to pay the attorney $10 a day.

SPRINKLE 'GAS' OVER STORE

Vandals last night sprinkled gasoline over meat and groceries in the store of M. J. Schriver, 2927 Penn avenue. William Kiedler, clerk, opening the store today, discovered a 15-gallon can which had contained gasoline. Contents of the store had been saturated with the fluid. Police are investigating to determine if the act was in revenge or to burn the place.

TRAFFIC CIRCLE FOR RANKIN PLANNED

A traffic circle costing $113,000 will be constructed on the Rankin side of the Rankin Bridge. County Commissioners have authorized the work. The county and Pittsburgh Railways Company will share the expense. The county's share will be $84,200 and the company's $28,800. In addition, the railways company will pay damage claims amounting to $5,000 and install track construction estimated to cost $21,000.

BLYTHESDALE MINERS RAIDED, 33 ARRESTED

Thirty-three men from the Pittsburgh Coal Company camp at Blythesdale will be arraigned before Justice of the Peace John Popp, Jr., of Castle Shannon Tuesday night as a result of a raid made at the camp yesterday. The men arrested were said to have been in a house occupied by A. H. Tapp. Drinking and gambling were being conducted, according to the raiders.

STORM RAGES IN HADASSAH CONCLAVE

Rumblings of the storm within the Zionist organizations which have agitated the meetings of the senior Hadassah, in convention at the William Penn Hotel, broke with fury today when the delegates debated the platform criticizing the Zionist Organization of America. The Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization, has been asked to adopt the platform calling for reforms in the general organization. The women became involved in a parliamentary tangle and the debate lasted through the morning session.

It was contended that the Zionist Organization of America attempted to rob the women's organization of its autonomy and make it subservient. It was charged that Louis Lipsky, president of the Zionist Organization of America, attempted to disenfranchise 5,000 members of the Hadassah. It was revealed that even prior to last year's convention of both bodies, Hadassah had misgivings about the work of the Zionist Organization of America in Palestine and was convinced that steps must be taken to restore confidence.

A platform was prepared, in which it was set forth that the methods of the Zionist Organization were faulty and inefficient and suggestions of remedy were made. When this platform was presented to the Hadassah delegates for adoption the storm arose. The administration forces seemed to be in the majority and it was expected that the ratification of the platform would result.

COUNCIL ON VACATION AFTER SPECIAL MEETING

A special meeting of council was held yesterday in order that all pending business might be taken a vacation over the Fourth of July. There will be no regular councilmanic meetings, it was announced, until July 16.

SEIZE LIQUOR IN HILL RAIDS

Federal prohibition agents sallied from their new headquarters in the Plaza Building early today and raided two places in the Hill district. In a store at 1230 Wylie avenue they seized 144 half-pints and a five-gallon keg of moonshine and arrested Toney Marone.

In a store at 1224 Wylie avenue they confiscated liquor and arrested Alban Farkis.

NO. 394.
AN ORDINANCE—Granting unto the Pittsburgh Railways Company, its successors, lessees and assigns, the right to enter upon, use and occupy Grandview Avenue, Republic Street, Greenleaf Street, Fingal Street and Rutledge Street in the City of Pittsburgh, between the points herein set forth for street railway purposes, subject to the terms and conditions herein provided.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same. That the Pittsburgh Railways Company, its successors, lessees and assigns shall have the right and they are hereby authorized to enter upon, use and occupy for street railway purposes the streets and highways in, on and along the following route:

BEGINNING at the present terminus of street railway track on Grandview Avenue, near Oneida Street; thence westwardly by single track along Grandview Avenue 170 feet to a point east of Republic Street; thence curving southwestwardly 76 feet to and onto Republic Street; thence southwardly by single track along Republic Street 754.3 feet to a point north of Greenleaf Street; thence curving southwestwardly to and onto Greenleaf Street 80 feet; thence westwardly along Greenleaf Street 132.6 feet to a point east of Fingal Street; thence curving northwestwardly to and onto Fingal Street 93 feet; thence northwardly along Fingal Street by single track 77 feet; thence continuing northwardly along Fingal Street by double track 330 feet; thence continuing northwardly along Fingal Street by single track 77 feet to a point south of Rutledge Street; thence curving northeastwardly to and onto Rutledge Street 93 feet; thence eastwardly along Rutledge Street by single track 384.8 feet to a point near Republic Street; thence curving northeastwardly 74 feet to a point of connection with the track hereinbefore described to be constructed on Republic Street north of Rutledge Street.

SECTION 2. The Pittsburgh Railways Company, its successors, lessees and assigns, shall have the right and they are hereby authorized to construct maintain, operate and use street railway track on the route hereinbefore mentioned, together with the necessary turnouts and connections, and to operate cars thereon, and to use electricity as a motive power, and to erect, maintain and use in the streets and highways hereinbefore mentioned such posts, poles and other supports as said Company may deem convenient for the support and maintenance of an overhead system, and for the operation of street railways, subject, however, to the provisions of an ordinance approved February 25, 1890, entitled "A general ordinance relating to the entry upon, over or under, or the use or occupation of any street, lane or alley or any part thereof, for any purpose, by passenger or street railway companies, or by companies operating passenger or street railways, and providing reasonable regulations pertaining thereto for the public convenience and safety."

SECTION 3. The Company shall furnish clean, sanitary and well lighted cars, properly heated and ventilated, and shall provide sufficient cars to furnish reasonable service to accommodate the traffic.

SECTION 4. The Pittsburgh Railways Company may assign any of the rights hereinbefore granted to such of the underlying companies operated or to be operated by it as it deems proper, subject to the consent of Council of the City of Pittsburgh, and subject also to the acceptance by said underlying companies of all the terms and provisions of this ordinance.

SECTION 5. The term of this grant shall be for the period of Fifty (50) years from the date of acceptance hereof.

SECTION 6. This ordinance shall be accepted by the Pittsburgh Railways Company within Sixty (60) days after its passage or approval, by a Certificate of Acceptance of all the conditions and provisions thereof. The said certificate to be executed under the corporate seal of the Company, duly attested by the President or Vice President, and the Secretary or an Assistant Secretary thereof, and filed with the Controller of the City.

SECTION 7. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

Master-Mind Submits Self to Amazing Test

This is Fitzhugh H. McArtichoke, who recently submitted himself to an amazing test, Blindfolded, he listened to phonograph records of "Ramona" and "Marchita" and successfully told which was which. As the records were immediately thrown into an ash-can, before the blindfold was removed, it is believed that the experiment was honestly conducted. Mrs. McArtichoke was in charge of the test.

New Memorial Blazons Solemn Traffic Lesson

The illustration herewith is that of a triangular structure at Grant street, Sixth and Webster avenues. On its three faces are lettering which states that it was erected in memory of 176 Pittsburgh persons killed in traffic in 1927. A sub-legend informs that 58 have been killed in the same way in 1928.

Although it has been formally and publicly dedicated as a memorial, this pile is largely a monument to carelessness. Its imposing form and dimensions should be a penetrating reminder to both pedestrians and motorists that traffic is a merciless giant constantly claiming lives as payment when those who are part of its swift current are not careful and vigilant.

At nearly every corner are painted crosses to remind drivers and others that "two were killed here" or that "seven were killed here" or whatever the death score for the year at any particular point may be, but these signs have become so numerous that they seem to have lost their impressiveness.

The new monument should more effectively point its solemn lesson through its size and the alarming total of lost lives that it blazons to every passer-by, whether awheel or afoot.

High Schools Set Record In Number Graduating

The 16 Pittsburgh public high schools are holding their commencement exercises. Of five schools 834 graduates received diplomas. In four others pupils completing their courses numbered 500 students. Altogether, 1,839 young people finish their public school training with the summer ending of the school year. These are in addition to the 1,500 who received their diplomas in February, making more than 3,300 high school graduates for the year.

This is said to be a record and it is one that the school administration may well be proud of. It is an achievement, too, of which the citizens should be appreciative when they consider the improvement that has marked the progress of our schools in the last 15 years. There was some grumbling when the Board of Public Education displaced the old district and central school boards, but who now can doubt that the change was of enormous benefit to our children?

Conviction on Majority Vote of Jurors Is Urged

Members of the Pennsylvania Bar Association, meeting in Bedford Springs, heard William S. Dalzell, of Pittsburgh, president of the society, urge a change in criminal legal procedure that would permit convictions on a majority vote of jurors. It is a revolutionary suggestion, but one that proposes a change that would be welcomed by many.

There has been much criticism of the operation of the jury system in recent years and much of it has been caused by juries that do not agree, resulting in retrials, with added expense and delay or prevention in the administration of justice. One juror can tie up eleven others and miscarriage of justice often is the result.

Merely as an experiment, it would seem that the suggestion of Mr. Dalzell would be worth a test in practice.

Memories and Step-Children

On June 15, forty years ago, William Hohenzollern became King of Prussia and German Emperor. Now he is a tired old man in Holland, with a second wife, some stepchildren and memories.

And he may take comfort in the fact that if you don't climb so high you can't fall so far.

The trouble with the ex-Kaiser, as with many men that succeed, was simple. He virtually believed the things that men said to him about his own greatness, lost his sense of proportion and judgment. And in connection with the war made every mistake and prophecy that could have been made, thought Russia would stay out, thought England would not come in. He believed that Italy would stick to the Austro-German entente as triple alliance—wrong every time.

IN 6th PLACE WITH THREE FLAT TIRES

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Throwing Stones

FOR a few days I have had a window looking out upon the Mediterranean from the Promenade des Anglais at Nice. Along this part of the "Cote 'd Azur" paleolithic man left some of the earliest marks of his presence, and I have been entertained in my daily observation of the spectacles on the beach, here, furnished by the latest types of mankind, by noting certain survivals, among them of ways and customs that have not fundamentally changed since the Old Stone Age.

The most significant of these does not seem to me to be the return, in more elegant forms, of prehistoric conceptions of modesty, (or immodesty) but a much simpler and, indeed, an almost childish thing, viz, the habit of stone throwing. The very first morning I looked out of my window, I saw a lone man on the beach industriously throwing pebbles, apparently aimed only at the blue-green water. Presently another began to stone the water. Then they sat down, side by side, and as they talked, they pulled pebbles from under their legs—for the beach is composed of nothing else by the most beautifully smoothed and rounded little stones, as hard as adamant—and threw them, sometimes idly and sometimes with a sudden vicious energy, at the sparkling wavelets.

This was but an introduction to what I was to see later. This beach at Nice is not so good for bathing as one composed of fine, hard, compacted sand, but it is a great place for liers-in-the-sun and a great proportion of them, as far as I have observed, become stonethrowers sooner or later if they stay long enough. One of the most amusing examples of the spell of these seductive pebbles upon those who walk over, or sit down upon them, was furnished just before this writing by a tall, dignified man, accompanied, we will say, by his wife, equally dignified, who sat down, side by side, upon the pebbles. In a few minutes both began stoning the water with side-throws and over-head throws and tosses in every variety of manual propulsion that can be given to a stone. Of course the children all eagerly and enthusiastically join the throwers.

Accompanied by an old friend, I went down on the beach myself one day, and immediately fell under the charm. These pebbles seem to have been shaped and weighted for David's sling; every one of them would have made a deadshot for Goliath. We had not been among them more than a minute or two before we were both hammering the blue water with stones that sent up white jets like miniature shells in a sea battle.

These scenes, so unexpected on one of Europe's most famous beaches and so reminiscent of untraveled boyhood, set me meditating on the universality and immense antiquity of the art of throwing—the mother of gunnery and ballistics. It may have been a temptingly round, smooth pebble, picked up on one of these beaches, where for eons the waves have crunched and shaped and polished the fragments fallen from the bordering marble mountains, that taught primitive man how to project his power of destruction beyond the reach of his arm.

The Bachelor

SHOULD the married man, simply upon the fact of his having dependents, be better paid for equal service than the bachelor?

A school of social philosophers has long upheld the affirmative, on the same ground that others uphold maternal pensions and insurance. Some nations have put into law various preferentials for the fathers of families.

How many know that we have such a preferential system in our Army and Navy?

By an act passed six years ago, while the pay of officers of equal rank remained equal, the allowances were so varied that, for example, a bachelor rear admiral in the lower half of the list, on command at sea, drew only $6,219 a year, while his married contemporary, with the same rank and service, and doing the same duty, received $7,500.

That is still the law. A bill to remove the "substantial wrong" was introduced in the recent session of the Congress, but it did not pass.

Its author, Representative Hale, of New Hampshire, spoke vigorously against its unfairness, having particular reference to the Navy, in which the preferentials reach the widest gap in practice.

He expressed surprise that there has not been insistent clamor for remedial legislation. He could find no excuse whatever for compensating the married officer for the fact of marriage.

It is evident that he is not a sociologist.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Be Careful—Not Sorry

YOU say you have no fear of statements made about you as long as they are not true, no matter how detrimental they sound.

Because a certain action of yours represents nothing really wrong, you think it unnecessary to abstain from it.

You flatter yourself that you are above the "speech of people."

Don't be so short sighted.

There is that little saying, "Avoid the appearance of evil" if you would retain the respect of your fellow men, and it is as true today as ever.

No matter what your standing, no matter how confident that you are right, evil reports, unsilenced, can ruin you.

You may think that your family will not suffer for anything that you may do because you know that you will not go too far and you will not do anything wrong.

But if your actions suggest shadiness, even though they may be strictly honorable, shadiness is the color that will be given to your acts in the minds of others.

You are taking a big chance of being misunderstood.

Most of your friends form their ideas from indications presented.

It's better to be careful than sorry.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Prophecy

LAST night I could not sleep, and so
I marshaled joys that once I knew
In care free hours of long ago,
And watched them pass in gay review.

Perhaps the darkness of the night
By contrast made them still more fair,
For all those memories of delight
Grew lovlier as they flowered there.

Who knows? Each gladness of today
May with time's flight fresh beauty gain,
And in some midnight far away
Beguile dark hours of lonely pain.

Words of the Wise

Sometimes quiet is disquieting.—Seneca.

Instinct is untaught ability.—Bain.

'Tis always morning somewhere in the world.—Richard Hengest Horne.

Every one of us, whatever our speculative opinions, knows better than he practices and recognizes a better law than he obeys.—Froude.

A man not perfect, but of heart
So high, of such heroic rage
That even his hopes become a part
Of earth's eternal heritage.

—R. W. Gilder.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THERE ain't anything funnier about people than the kind of things they're proud of. Why, men are a lot worse that way than women. They're proud of some ancestor that they never saw and couldn't have helped any if they had seen him. And they're proud of golf scores and terrible voices and a lot of other things. Some guys are proud of how near they can come to guessing something or—well, anyway, that's what the story is about.

A fellow won a guessing contest at a county fair. He was a young fellow that had been awful dumb at school, and got to feeling kinda inferior because he couldn't pass any examinations, but he guessed exactly how many beans was in a bushel basket. There was millions of them, I suppose, but anyway he got the number exactly right, while the next nearest guess was about forty thousand off.

So this boy was handed the prize of $10 and a gold medal, while all the movie cameras clicked and a lot of people was asking him to indorse their cigarets. He had to make a speech, too, for the phonograph records.

"Well," he says, awful embarrassed, "it wasn't nothing of a trick to do that. I guess I guessed it all right. But I wasn't really trying. Why, I could a done a lot better if I'd a-tried a little."

Popping the Question

JACK was in love, but too shy to tell the girl of his heart all about it. A friend advised him to continue to pay her attention in the hope that she would draw her own conclusions.

Jack found her very slow in taking the hint, and, driven to desperation, said:

"Helen, wasn't I here in your house on Sunday?"

"Yes," said Helen.

"And wasn't I here on Monday and Tuesday?"

"Yes."

"And also on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday?"

"Yes."

"And this is Sunday night and I'm here again?"

"Yes. You're very welcome."

"W-w-well, H-Helen, c-can't you s-smell a rat?"

Second Thoughts

A SCOT applied for a rise, stating that he was thinking of getting married. At the end of the week he found a fairly substantial rise in his pay envelope.

Some time later he met the manager on the stairs.

"I suppose you've settled down to married life now?" asked the manager.

"I'm no' married," replied the Scot.

"Not married!" echoed the manager in surprise; "but didn't you apply for a raise because you were thinking of getting married?"

"Oh, aye," came the reply, "but I stopped thinking."

Isn't It So?

New York Day by Day

THOUGHTS while strolling: The avenue bristles with flags. Goody, maybe there'll be a parade and a band. Those modernistic dress forms with heads like snails. I hope the owner of the wad of gum in my instep acquires a mild dose of itch. Theodore Dreisler, a Terre Haute (Ind.) boy, who made good in the city.

Lee Shubert alone in a big car. He's a glum looking fellow. A white Russian wolf hound asleep on the steps of a church. Pale youths with fawn ties who gallop along hatless as though going somewhere. Instead of just showing off. The somber dignity of a Japanese store. Joseph Mulvaney, the dramatic scribbler.

There's an idea—bathtub bookracks. More entire glass building fronts. What's become of feather boas? Brass sign: "Pituitary Science." What fresh hell is that? A plump dowager without a yapping Peke. Tony Sarg. Aging clubmen with white vest edging. The sun sinks in blood-red splendor.

The eerie evening honk of geese in the Central Park lake. A white wing lights a cigaret with a patent lighter. The guilty feeling when a cop walks suddenly toward you. And the effort to appear don't carish. Maids trying to look pale and interesting. And only succeed in looking pale.

Why feel foolish when a group sniggers as you pass by? They may be laughing at something else. Unless you wear white spats. The golden cock on the Hecksher building. Receives more publicity than Peggy Joyce's latest diamond. Dusk sifts gray shadows.

Karl Kitchen leaving his bachelor chambers. Those vigorous fellows who seem to spring up the steps of the Athletic Club. Making the ordinary mortal feel as though he had the rickets or something. Wonder if I'm spry enough to cross Columbus Circle.

Evelyn Law, the high kick dancing girl. Who attends church regularly. At least a press agent says. Those fresh milk shops seem to be cutting into the orange drink places. They have been forgetting about the orange anyway lately. Broadway prosperity makes folk careless. A sleepy star winks its eye.

The underworld still whispers police lieutenant and gangsters electrocuted for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, were not guilty. It is declared they were sacrificed for a man high up. This has become a saga for crookdom that will not be shaken. No satisfactory alibi to prove their innocence has been given, but the underworld when questioned lifts an eyebrow and smiles a knowing smile. But never was such a scare thrown into gangsters as the roundup in this daring crime. So it may be the underworld's way of whistling in the dark.

The spot where Rosenthal fell amid a volley of bullets fired in the whitest light of Broadway's night glare still draws the curious. It is across from the side entrance to the George M. Cohan Theater in West Forty-third street. At that time the Metropole occupied the premises. Today there is another eating place. Almost every few hours of the day some New Yorker leads a stranger up and shows where the victim fell. A newsboy at the corner says he is asked a dozen times a week to point out the spot.

* * *

To me the Becker-Rosenthal murder, as it became known, was the most interesting crime of this generation. It spewed up from the dregs of the underworld such picturesquely named gunmen as Gyp the Blood, Whitey Lewis, Dago Frank and Lefty Louie, furnished them with the "gray murder car," primed them with drugs and sent them into brightest, gayest and best policed section of the Tenderloin to kill. And it brought into the witness chair the tight-lipped and hairless gambler Bald Jack Rose, whose ghastly monsyllabic story sent his confreres to the electric chair. The novelist who would have invented the situations that actually existed in this case would receive only a sour snigger.

The "dummy chucker," who pounces upon crusts in the gutter to win sympathy and a shower of change, is no more. But the lady swoon artist is working again. She wears tattered garments and falls into a faint from obvious hunger in crowded sections. Her co-worker in fine clothes pushes a bill into her hands, which starts the ball rolling for a big purse.

I saw a timid young man step into an empty sight-seeing bus in Times Square today to await its start. Hi Quinnie!

The Economic Urge

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

Few people realize the advantages in the economic urge. Everybody in the United States is looking for a job or is working. The job seems to be the supreme thing among us, and the man who hasn't anything to do is not considered of much account.

Some people regard this as materialistic, as not being conducive to the virtues of the higher life, such as art, education and religion, but it will be found that the economic argument is the very best one for the invisible qualities.

Take religion: It is usual to sneer at people who become religious because they want to get on in the world and want to be prosperous, but after all the Ten Commandments and all other tenets of religion are the foundation of world prosperity.

A man will get along better and have more earthly success if he obeys the Golden Rule than if he looks out constantly for Number One, regardless of other people.

It is a great thing for religion, to find out that religion pays in this life. You don't have to wait for the next life, you don't have to spend all your time here in misery and failure in the hope of future reward.

The economic urge has got behind religion and it is one of the best things that ever happened to the religious idea.

The other day Henry Ford said in England that he looked for world-wide prohibition as an economic necessity. Prohibition has done so much economically for the United States and rendered it so prosperous that the drink-cursed nations realize they cannot compete with us until they get upon the same basis. Never has any country prospered materially so much as the United States since the passage of the prohibition amendment.

The economic urge has got behind the abolition of liquor. We simply have found out that the drink habit interferes with our prosperity, and the economic urge says that whatever interferes with prosperity must go.

In a country ruled by ideas of economic efficiency, education is found to be a necessity. When the people are educated their wants are more, their manner of living is higher and better, and hence they buy more goods.

Young people are more and more seeing that it is the educated man or the trained man or woman who prospers in this life. Education and prosperity go hand in hand.

It will be found that in a world governed by business ideals the spiritual virtues have a better chance than in a world governed by a monarchial idea.

On the whole, men and women are better citizens if they are inspired with the desire to make a living for themselves rather than if all the reason they have for living is to serve their country or be good soldiers for a king.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

WE have the news of a grandmother, 51, who elopes with her children's pal, a boy of 28.

A woman of 107, just for the fun of it, advertised a year ago for a husband, just to see if anybody would "bite." She got 148 proposals.

A duchess of 62 hopped off in an airplane from London to India.

A woman of 60 married her fourth husband, and too an airplane honeymoon.

A girl and her mother, the mother 50, were married on the same day. It was the mother's third wedding.

A woman of 70 sued a man of 35 for breaking her heart. It was settled out of court, which spoiled a lot of good newspaper reading. Imagine getting to 70 and then having one's heart broken!

A lady of 40 sued a man for a kiss he stole.

So you see what a very little difference age makes in the lives of modern women.

The attractive girl with personality is outdistancing the pretty girl every day, in the world of business. Girls who are only pretty think they can just sit, but the others concern themselves with being agreeable and with learning the business, a combination that has put thousands of young women between the ages of 20 and 23 on the way to success in New York alone.

Women who "enjoy poor health" are the women who think of no one but themselves. Last year, according to reports from orphanages, thousands of women improved their health by adopting children and spending their time worrying about them. They entirely forgot themselves, and got well.

One woman adopted twins and the first year her friends predicted she couldn't stand the strain of caring for them. She gained 20 pounds, and her insomnia was cured. She says that now she hopes to save what the twins cost, in doctor bills.

One woman cured nervousness by doing her own housework and cooking three meals a day for her family. But you can never make that cure popular. She became so interested in how to bake blueberry muffins and cherry pies, and make them better than anyone else could, and she was so surprised to find that she could make better hollandaise sauce than any hotel ever served her, and her family had a wonderful time, and incidentally she got well.
